THE QUEEN AT A MATINEE.

London, November 3.
Nobody enjoys a good variety performance more than the Queen. It was obvious at the "Friends of the Poor" matinee at the Hippodrome that her presence was something more than the gracious recognition of a most deserving cause.

Mr. Nelson Keys, directing his shadowy after-ego in a film, was clearly a favourite in the Royal box. But during Mr. Stanley Holloway's famous Lancashire recitations the Queen laughed unrestrainedly.

His technique is admirable. The immortal Sam who dropped his moustache before Waterloo is now succeeded by one Joe Musgeridge, who hobnobbed with Nelson at Trafalgar. The formula shows no signs of wearing thin.

AN INFORMAL VISIT.

There was a marked absence of any formalities when the Duchess of York's visit to the Queen's Hall on Thursday, on the occasion of the Philharmonic Concert.

With a woman friend she sat in the middle of the stalls. At the conclusion of the performance she left by the stalls gateway with the rest of the audience.

In the crush a young woman dashed past her, almost knocking her down.

A space had been kept clear for her car at the door, but this was the only overt sign of any special attention.

THE FLYING POLICEMAN.

If policemen are to be fitted with wings, Flight Lt. Lloyd-Williams, who is leaving the R.A.F. to become a chief inspector at Scotland Yard, may be regarded as well qualified to discharge the duties entailed. Mr. Lloyd-Williams can claim varied service not merely in the air but in administrative capacities.

He left a Yeomanry regiment in 1915 in order to enter the R.F.C., and two years later in Palestine had gained the Military Cross, to which he was awarded a bar some time later.

Most of his service has been in the Middle East (he is at present an adjutant at Amman), but he has also passed through a course at the Staff College, in addition to being for a time at Halton.

As a member at one time of No. 70 Squadron in Iraq, and in subsequent work, he has had fairly considerable experience of aerial police work of the kind accepted by the R.A.F. in Iraq and elsewhere as a normal duty.

GHOSTS AT DOULLENS.

At Doullens Town Hall next Saturday Lady Milner unveils the bust of her husband which she has presented to the town.

It will stand in the room where the historic conference sat which led to Marshal Foch being entrusted with Allied supreme command.

Only two of those who attended that fateful meeting on March 26, 1918, survive to-day. One of them, Marshal Petain, will be present at the simple unveiling ceremony.

The other is M. Poincare. Lord Milner, Lord Haig, Sir Henry Wilson, M. Clemenceau, and M. Loucheur, who completed the gathering, have all passed beyond the bourne.

On Saturday Lady Milner will be accompanied from England by Sir Felix Ready, Quartermaster-General to the Forces, while it is expected that either Marshal Petain or Gen. Gouraud will represent France.

THE KING'S CHRISTMAS CARD.

Mr. Bernard F. Gribble, who has had the honour of furnishing the design for the King's Christmas card—a picture of the Henry VII. Chapel, Westminster Abbey—is the son of Mr. H.A.K. Gribble, the architect of Brompton Oratory.

He himself as one time contemplated an architectural career, but later he decided that painting was his true vocation.

His work has since appeared in numerous exhibitions. Seascapes are his favourite studies, and he is Master Painter to the Worshipful Company of Shipwrights.

A LITERARY OCCASION.

Seldom are the major forces behind modern literature—publishers, authors, and critics—met together in such harmony as they did at the "Sunday Times" Book Exhibition, which at Grosvenor House.

This presented the opening of the Exhibition of "Sunderland House" later in the afternoon.

Publics are not usually exuberant in their optimism, but there was a general feeling that "the time has come" as it affected books. "The time" was no doubt as to the help the exhibition would give to the trade this autumn.

The speeches at lunch were a model of brevity. Both those of Lord Camrose (who presided), and of the Earl of Idlesleigh, who proposed the host's health, took together less than half a minute.

LADY DICKENS' INTEREST.

Lady Dickens, the 34 years old wife of Sir Henry Dickens, found especial interest in a first edition of the "Posthumous Papers of the Pickwick Club," dated 1836-37, which is one of the treasures of the exhibition.

Of the several hundred "points" that go to make up a perfect copy, only four are missing—and those small ones.

Lady Dickens observed that this was one of the few Dickens relics not in the possession of the family.

A RETIREMENT.

The retirement of Lord Ebbisham from the post of treasurer to the Conservative party, seven a long and very intimate association with the affairs of the party.

During the last General Election Lord Ebbisham, still best remembered in the House of Commons as Sir Rowland Blanes, kept the financial staff of the party working at fever pitch to restore a badly-depleted war chest.

Since then he has continued his efforts, though, I hear, without that degree of success which he would have wished to see.

LORD EBBISHAM'S SUCCESSOR.

His successor, Lord Greenwood, Canadian, formerly Liberal, and Chief Secretary for Ireland, has a big heart, and a voice to match. He also has an extensive and intimate acquaintance with "big business."

Lord Greenwood should make a first-rate treasurer—he has to live up to a tradition most ably built up by Lord Younger and others—but his post will be no sinecure.

Political parties, like armies, fight on their bellies, and the Conservative commissariat is not over-well provisioned at the present time.

FAMOUS OXFORD "DIGS."

Sir Edwin Lutyens, a friend in Oxford tells me, has been commissioned to rebuild one of the most celebrated lodging houses there as the new headquarters of the Society of Jesus.

The Jesuits at present have a home in "The Giler," Campion Hall, of which Father Martin D'Arcy, the popular, farm-street preacher, recently became the Master.

The new Campion Hall will be built on the site of Micklem Hall, in Brewer-street. The older part, which contains some magnificent oak panelling, will be preserved.

INTER-IMPERIAL TRADE

Mr. Bruce's Plea For Resolute Policy

London, Nov. 28.
The High Commissioner for Australia the Hon. Stanley Bruce, speaking in London to-day expressed the view that a strong resolute policy of Imperial co-operation was at present a paramount necessity.

He said that a start towards such a policy was made at Ottawa. His complaint was that Ottawa has been treated as an isolated incident and not as the laying of a foundation upon which would be built a great structure of inter-Imperial trade.

VALUABLE HOME MARKET

Britain, with her relatively large population, had a valuable home market, great supplies of capital and unrivalled experience. She had, however, no great resources. The Dominions and the dependent Empire had the resources, but not the home markets, the capital or the experience.

With a policy of financial and economic co-operation, the British nation could face the difficult conditions of the next few years with confidence.

He suggested co-opting a small group of the best men available, who, divorced from all other interests and activities, could devote the whole of their time to paramount Imperial problems.—British Wireless.

FOR THE BAGSHOT LODGE.

The Duke of Connaught has consented to have his portrait painted in the full masonic regalia of Grand Master. The picture is to be a presentation by the artist, Mr. Donald Wood, to the Bagshot Lodge of Freemasons.

The artist's portrait of the late Marquis of Normanby was hung on the line at the Paris Salon last year.

LEMON JUICE ADDS ZEST TO STEAK; SO DO BUTTER, MUSTARD

French round steak is twice as palatable if lemon juice is squeezed over the cakes while they are hot. Salt, pepper and dots of butter will cooperate with the lemon seasonin' and bring out added points in the meat juices.

Dry mustard, rubbed into cuts on round steak, also has an interesting way of finding new flavours in the meat.

MOCK TURTLE CROQUETTES

1 can (1½ cups) mock turtle soup 2/3 cup rice, or 2 cups, cooked rice.

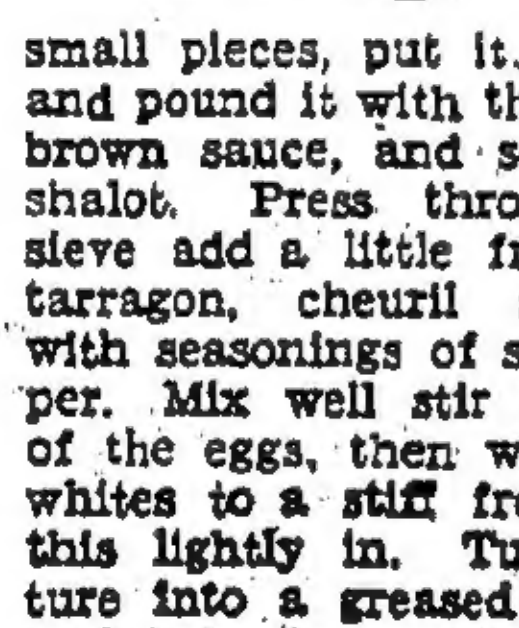

Cook rice in boiling, salted water until almost done; drain. Heat soup to boiling point, add rice and cook slowly until rice has absorbed most of the liquid. Turn out on platter to cool. Shape into croquettes; dip in fine crumbs, then in slightly beaten egg, then in crumbs again. Fry in deep hot fat until brown. Drain on unglazed paper. These are delicious served with tomato sauce. This will serve five.

ORANGE BISCUITS

Mix 2 cups flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons shortening and ½ cup milk. Roll the dough out until it is ¼ inch thick and cut with a small cutter. Press gently into the center of each biscuit a lump of loaf sugar which has been soaked in orange juice. Place also on each biscuit a small piece of orange rind from orange marmalade. Bake in hot oven. The same recipe may be varied by omitting orange and dotting top of biscuits with currants.

"SOUFFLE OF CHICKEN"

Half pound cold cooked chicken, three eggs, one and a half ounces butter, one still brown sauce, half a shallot, sea-onings. Cut the meat into small pieces, put it in a mortar and pound it with the butter and brown sauce, and some greatest shallot. Press through a hair sieve add a little fresh chopped tarragon, cheiril and parsley, with seasonings of salt and pepper. Mix well stir in the yolks of the eggs, then whisk the egg whites to a stiff froth and fold this lightly in. Turn the mixture into a greased souffle dish, and bake in a quick oven.

CARE OF YOUR SKIN

America, noted for her well-groomed women, is usually the force with the latest beauty treatments and from one of New York's most exclusive parlours comes a new method for rejuvenating and enlivening the skin. It is both simple and inexpensive, and can be undertaken at home by every woman. The chief ingredient is an ordinary hen's egg.

1. Cleanse

First of all the face is cleansed and entirely freed from all dust and make-up.

The method used for cleansing varies according to the type of skin.

In the case of a normal or slightly greasy skin, soap and water or a liquid cleanser is used.

When there is excessive greasiness, ether can be employed as a more effective way of drying up the surplus oil.

A dry skin responds better to cleansing cream, and the best beauty parlours invariably choose one which liquefies directly it comes into contact with the face. Two coatings are applied, and subsequently removed with a pad of cotton wool soaked in cold water and skin tonic.

When every vestige of dust and make-up has been removed, the

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Polishing mops, must be carefully washed. If saturated with wax or floor oil, remove the mops from the sticks and soak several hours in a bucket containing a strong solution of soda and water. Then remove and work in clean hot soapy water containing soda, and finally rinse well. Most modern mop-heads can be slipped off their metal fittings and therefore can be passed through a wringer. When quite dry the polishing mops can be impregnated with a fresh supply of floor oil.

Dusters should be clean and sufficiently large, 27 inches square is a good size. One or two can be specially prepared for polished furniture by rinsing in hot water and then sprinkling them with a little mop oil. Roll up for an hour or so, then open out shake and dry. When dry the duster will be just sufficiently oily to pick up the dust instead of flicking it to other resting-places. Special fabric gloves with soft yarn palms also treated with oil are excellent for dusting and polishing at the same time.

Paintwork must never be cleaned with strong soap or scouring powder. If very dirty, it may be rubbed with a damped cloth dipped in salt and paraffin and afterwards washed and dried with a soft cloth. An enameled surface should first be dusted and then cleaned with a cloth dipped in warm water and sprinkled with precipitated whitening. Then rinse, and polish with a leather.

Mirrors are best cleaned by rubbing them with tissue paper or a soft rag dipped in methylated spirit or paraffin, and sprinkled with whitening. Then wipe, first with a duster and finally polish with a chamol leather.

Furniture of all kinds needs special attention. Perhaps furniture should be washed before it is repolished, oak with a little warm beer and mahogany with cold tea or with vinegar and water. An excellent reviver for mahogany furniture contains equal parts of boiled linseed oil, spiritine, brown vinegar and methylated spirit. This mixture must be well shaken and applied with a cloth free from fluff, and the furniture afterwards polished with a clean duster.

AN UNCHARTED SHOAL

The following Emergency Notice is issued, for the information of shipmasters, and others concerned, upon advice received from Australian Coast Pilot Howie:

The Norwegian steamer Willy, whilst navigating on the recommended track between Fife Island and Hay Island, grounded and remained stationary for two hours on an uncharted obstruction in approximate lat. 13 deg. 39 min. S., long 143 deg. 42 min. E. Heath Reef Light bearing N. 14 deg. W. Magnetic and north-west end of Fife Island bearing S. 77 deg. E. magnetic.

treatment is continued in the following way—

1. A new laid egg is cracked and the yolk separated from the white.

2. The White

The yolk is put into one saucer and the white into another, and half a teaspoonful of borax mixed with each. This is stirred well until it is absolutely smooth and completely blended into the egg.

A few drops of astringent are added; not too much, otherwise the mixture becomes watery, but sufficient to make a nice creamy consistency. Practically any astringent does for the purpose, or if preferred, witch hazel is quite effective.

When both saucers have been prepared, the white of egg mixture is smeared all over the face and lightly, as not to stretch the skin, and then left until dry.

3. Skin Food

You will, of course, have protected your hair with a towel or some other piece of clean material.

It is here that this beauty treatment differs from others of similar kind.

Instead of the white of egg being removed, a good nourishing cream is smeared over the top and massaged into the skin. It is the combined properties of the skin food that make the treatment so unusually beneficial.

4. The Yolk

The cream is now wiped off, with either paper tissues or a piece of soft rag. When it has been completely removed, the yolk of egg mixture is spread evenly over the face and left on for about twenty minutes. It is then removed with lukewarm water.

This completes the treatment. The skin should now be wonderfully smoothed and softened and the texture noticeably refined.

MAKING UP

The three most important factors in making up the face are the eyes, the mouth and the eyebrows, according to Gwen Lynne, Paramount's make-up expert in charge of attending to the players in "Driven," now being directed by Henry Edwards at Elstree.

"The eyes are very important," states Miss Lynne, "because one's expression comes from one's eyes. The mouth is emphasized more since the introduction of talking pictures. Care should therefore be taken in the application of the lipstick. The eyebrows give character and a finish to a face, and in order to have the correct effect, the application of the pencil should never be too hurried."

LEMON CAKES

¼ tsp. salt—2 cups flour—1 tsp. grated lemon rind 4 tablespoons butter—1 cup sugar—2 eggs unbeaten ½ cup milk or canned cream. Sift flour once, measure, add salt and sift again. Add lemon rind to butter and cream thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream until light and luffy. Add egg and beat well. Add flour alternately with milk a small quantity at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Bake in 2-9 inch layers in moderate oven 25 minutes. Spread lemon filling between layers, and lemon frosting on top and sides of cake.

Delicious Devon MILK that keeps good

Fresh from English Meadows

Think of the fresh green meadows of Devon in England! It is there that Ambrosia is produced. Ambrosia is rich, natural Devon milk, so nourishing for babies that many English Hospitals and Baby Clinics use it extensively, so delicious that once you try it for household use, you will use it always. Ambrosia solves the milk problem; it keeps good; it takes but a moment to make, and enables you to enjoy Devonshire Milk at its purest and best.

MAKING JELLIES AND CREAMS

Those luscious-looking clear jellies, which give so much joy to children and sometimes to adults, have for the majority of people one drawback—their food value is negligible. The only people who can with advantage consume food which appeases the appetite, but is lacking in nourishing qualities, are those suffering from obesity. But, although clear jellies alone lack the sustenance which is necessary for children and adults of normal size, various valuable foodstuffs, such as milk, cream, eggs, cornflour and fruit, can be incorporated with them, producing very attractive summer puddings.

A packet jelly, jelly crystals, or even gelatine and some fruit juice from an opened tin of fruit, can be made quickly into attractive and appetising dishes with a little ingenuity in varying the colour and flavour.

There are, however, a few points which should be remembered in order to obtain satisfactory results. For instance, under normal conditions 1 oz. of gelatine is sufficient to stiffen a pint of liquid, but should a jelly be wanted quickly on a very hot day when no cool larder is available, the quantity of gelatine should be increased slightly or the quantity of liquid somewhat lessened. Similarly, in using packet jellies less boiling water should be added. It may not have occurred to some readers that a means of reducing the time required for setting, a packet jelly is to add half the quantity of boiling liquid mentioned, which is sufficient to melt the jelly or crystals, and to add the remainder cold. This liquid may be water, spare juices left over from stewed fruit, the syrup from tinned fruit, or milk.

In the latter case, the jelly should be melted in some water first and allowed to cool slightly before the milk is added, otherwise it is very liable to curdle and to separate out. This separation of ingredients into a clear and cloudy portion, so vexing when one expects to turn out a jelly of uniform consistency, can always be avoided by allowing the jelly mixture to cool until it is almost beginning to set, before the milk, custard, white of egg, cream, white sauce, etc., are added.

The cost of fresh cream is rather high and that cannot therefore be used regularly for cooking by every housewife, so experiments have been made to produce a jelly mixture of creamy consistency without its use. A mixture of sugar, cornflour and gelatine, mixed with boiling milk flavoured, coloured and boiled for a minute, effects the result. These creams are very quickly and easily made, especially if poured into a plain wet mould, but to produce a very attractive jelly for a dinner party or festive occasions, it is advisable to mask the mould first. The simplest form of carrying out this type of decoration is to pour a small quantity of clear jelly into the bottom and set in it pieces of cherries, almonds, etc. A much more effective result, however, can be obtained by lining the whole of the interior of the mould with jelly and then setting the decoration. This procedure is rather tedious to carry out unless ice is available to chill the mould thoroughly.

These directions should be followed when making a mould:

1. Fill a bowl with small pieces of ice.
2. Pack the mould in it.
3. Pour about 2 or 3 table-spoonfuls of cold melted jelly into the mould, and rotate it slowly until the inside is evenly coated.
4. Continue pouring in and setting cold liquid jelly until the whole surface is lined with about 1 in. to 3-16 in. of the mixture.
5. Dip the decoration, slices of pistachio nut, cherries, angelica, etc., in liquid jelly by means of a skewer and place in position in the mould, allowing each piece to set firmly.
6. Fill centre with the prepared mixture, and put in a cold place till set. Unmould when required.

SPINACH SALAD

This is served on individual plates. You will require some ready boiled spinach, oil of mayonnaise, seasoning, green mustard, and one hard-boiled egg for every two persons.

Drain the spinach well and blend it with the oil of mayonnaise. Arrange some in the centre of each small dish. Cut the white of the egg into strips and arrange them on the mounds of spinach like petals, radiating from the centre. Season the yolk of egg and pile it in the centre. Put a border of the mustard leaves all round the edge of the dish.

Beulah's have just recently put out some very excellent spinach, it is grown in Great Britain, and canned there for the foreign market.

CREAMY SALAD DRESSING

INGREDIENTS:—

- 1 egg.
 - 1½ teaspoonfuls cornflour.
 - 1 pink milk.
 - 1 gill white vinegar.
 - 3 teaspoonfuls mustard.
 - 2 dessertspoonfuls salad oil.
 - Salt and pepper.
 - 2 dessertspoonfuls castor sugar.
- Whisk up the egg, then pour the milk on to it. Put the mustard and cornflour into a basin and mix them to a paste with the oil, add the sugar and vinegar, stirring the latter in gradually.
- Add these ingredients to the egg and milk by degrees, season with pepper and salt and strain into a saucepan.
- Boil for a few minutes, keeping it well stirred. Bottle when cool, and when cold cork securely.

CAULIFLOWER SALAD

INGREDIENTS:—

- 1 cauliflower.
 - Lettuce leaves.
 - Few capers.
 - Strips of pimento.
 - Hard-boiled eggs.
 - Oil mayonnaise.
- Chop a cauliflower with a large firm flower. Remove the outer leaves and trim the stump, leaving just enough green round the flower to keep it together. Cleanse it in salted water and blanch it in the usual way until tender, being careful not to overcook it, or it will break. Take it up and let it drain well, and when cold, serve it in a dish with a border of lettuce leaves and sliced hard-boiled eggs. Pour a little oil mayonnaise over the flower, and garnish it with capers and rings of pimento.
- Serve cauliflower salad with mayonnaise.

Salads

If carefully prepared salad can often make success of an otherwise ordinary meal. There is no end to the varieties that are constantly being invented.

It will be found that country mustard grown in boxes is of great assistance when something is needed to give piquancy to a salad. Failing this capers and sliced green chilies are other effective

QUICK RELIEF FROM PAIN and HEADACHES

Pain is no respecter of persons. Pain is a cheat. It nags at your nerves and wears you down. It robs millions of happiness and contentment. Pain attacks come suddenly in many forms. There are Head Pains—Rheumatic Pains—Nerve Pains—Headache—Toothache—Earache—Sciatic Pains, etc. In minor cases of pain, take two or three "ASPRO" Tablets and that is usually the end of the attack. In major cases of pain, take "ASPRO" according to the instructions in the packet. "ASPRO" is the greatest antidote for pain yet introduced to the world. It is the easiest, quickest and most effective method of obtaining relief without harming the heart or stomach.

'ASPRO'

Does Not Harm the Heart

Why 'ASPRO' Succeeds Where Ordinary 'ASPIRIN' Fails

There is a lot of confused thought regarding "ASPRO" and Aspirin. The wonderful therapeutic value of "ASPRO" as compared with crude Aspirin is so pronounced and causes so much enquiry as to why "ASPRO" succeeds where ordinary Aspirin fails that we propose to put the matter clearly in this announcement.

In the first place ordinary Aspirin and "ASPRO" commence from the same basic element. In a general sense they finish up in quite a different manner—"ASPRO" being pure, safe and effective—while ordinary Aspirin is frequently harmful and inefficient.

Crude Aspirin contains free Salicylic Acid, which is expressly forbidden in the standards laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia, the guiding authority of the Medical Profession. It is the free Salicylic Acid in Aspirin that causes palpitation of the heart, digestive troubles and other disorders.

The manufacturers of "ASPRO" have eliminated free Salicylic Acid from their product, and prevented its development. A manufacturer may start with a pure drug, and by lack of the latest knowledge may turn out tablets containing free Salicylic Acid, liberated during the processes necessary to prepare the powder for compression.

The following positive claim is made for "ASPRO" Tablets:

THEY ARE OF BRITISH MANUFACTURE. ACETYL-SALICYLIC ACID, FREE FROM ANY TRACE OF FREE SALICYLIC ACID AND CONFORMING TO THE TESTS OF ALL KNOWN AUTHORITIES, THE TABLETS ARE MADE BY PROCESSES WHICH ENSURE THAT THEY ARE OF THE SAME STANDARD OF PURITY AS THE ORIGINAL DRUG AND CONTAIN NO TRACE OF FREE SALICYLIC ACID.

The PURITY of 'ASPRO'

The purity of "ASPRO" conforms to the standard laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia—the guiding authority of the Medical Profession. With "ASPRO" there is no free Salicylic Acid, therefore, it does not harm the heart, or have any injurious after-effects, such as palpitation, nausea, digestive or other troubles. Safeguard your health and heart by always insisting on "ASPRO".

TIMBLE OF MACARONI

Break in very short lengths small macaroni. Boil in fast boiling salted water until well cooked. Drain and dress it with butter and grated cheese, then work into it one or two raw eggs, according to quantity. Butter and breadcrumb a plain mould, and fill with mixture, pressing it well down and leaving a hollow in the centre, into which place a well-flavoured mince meat of poultry or game or remains of joint, then fill up the mould with more macaroni pressing well down. Bake in moderate oven, turn out and serve.

PORK CHOPS WITH FRIED APPLES

Season chops with salt and pepper and a little powdered sage. Fry about 30 minutes or until they are cooked. Put them on a hot dish, pour out part of the gravy into another pan to make a gravy to serve with them. Then fry apples, which should be sliced about 2/3 of an inch thick, cutting them around the apples so that the core is in the centre of each piece, then cut out the core. When browned on one side and partly cooked, turn them carefully and finish cooking. Dish around the chops.

BANANA PUDDING

4 oz. margarine, 6 oz. self-raising flour, grated rind of 1 lemon, 2 bananas, apricot jam, a little milk. Grease a pudding basin, put a spoonful or more of apricot jam in the base of it. Cream the fat and sugar, then gradually stir in the sifted flour and finely grated lemon rind, moistening them with the well-whisked eggs and a little milk as required. Peel and slice the bananas and mix them into the pudding. Turn the mixture into the prepared basin and cover it securely with a well-buttered paper. Steam the pudding for from 1½ to 2 hours. Then turn it out and serve it with jam sauce.

NOUILLES SOUP

1 whole and 2 yolks of eggs. Parmesan cheese, 1 lb. of flour, water to mix, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 quart of clear stock. Sieve the flour and salt on to a board. Make a well in the centre, add the eggs beaten up with 1 gill of water, and mix adding more water gradually if too thick but the paste must be stiff. When worked quite smooth, roll it out in sheets as thinly as possible without breaking it. Cut each sheet of paste into strips or lozenges, and spread them out to dry. In 2 hours time throw these nouilles into some fast boiling well-flavoured clear stock and serve as soon as they are sufficiently cooked. Add cheese.

PEAS A LA FRANCAISE

3 table-spoonfuls butter or margarine, 1 slice bacon (diced), 2 cups shelled peas, 8 small onions, 1 cup cream, 1 egg yolk, salt, pepper. Cook butter with bacon for 5 minutes. Remove bacon and add peas and onions. Cover with boiling water and cook until the vegetables are soft. Drain and add cream and egg yolk slightly beaten. Season with salt and pepper. Serve.

SOURCES OF POWER IN THE AIRBritish Research Must Not Be Starved

Of a nation's strength in the air, as of great industries, scientific research and experiment are the springs, visible or hidden, which vitalise the whole. No matter what pruning-down or restriction circumstances may urge, there should be no stinting in research as well as military, may often be won in the laboratory.

Far more serious than the decline of Great Britain to fifth place as an Air Power is the cutting down of expenditure on research. Some good work is still being done, but in some important lines of experiment a halt has been called, and it is only too likely that other countries may win victories and rewards which ought to be ours.

This is not merely a matter of sentiment. Our Schneider Trophy effort brought us not prestige merely, it bore fruit in orders for British aircraft and engines which are keeping some works busy to this day.

Research is the best of all national investments, a quarter of a million put into it to-day may bring in as much as fifty millions in ten years.

We are making no preparation to win back our lost air speed records; but far more serious is the complete cessation of high-speed flight development. The plea that we can afford to mark time for a while in order to digest the data obtained between 1927 and 1931 is based on a complete fallacy, for there can be no pause in progress.

SECOND TO NONE

In the wide field of aeronautics British engineers and scientists have shown they are second to none. The pace is getting hotter;
but, given the means, we can certainly hold our own. If the work is starved our superiority is threatened, and our strength as an Air Power must quickly still further decline, whilst employment must suffer.

A few days ago an accident robbed us of our one experimental high-speed air-mail carrier. Much time had elapsed between the date on which the Air Ministry ordered it to an approved specification and its first flight trials. It would take many months to replace. It was probably our only chance of winning that great Empire communications contest—the London to Melbourne air race, to be held next October.

It is much to be regretted that only one machine of one type of this class of aeroplane could be ordered, when the United States has hundreds of mail planes of about 200 miles per hour speed in constant operation. Admittedly the U.S.A. has greater opportunities for this class of aeroplane than we have; but neither in the British Isles nor in the Dominions are opportunities entirely lacking.

THE FLYING-BOAT.

Another instance was that of the six-engined commercial flying-boat, the order for which was countermanded after construction had begun. Skilled workpeople were thrown out of employment.
By this time operational experience with that boat would have been obtainable.

It is claimed, fallaciously, that in our present hard case we should watch developments in other countries and profit from our rivals' experience. But that is impossible.
In aircraft, moreover, operational experience must be first-hand.

An example of the reward of surer methods is provided by the autogyro, a foreign invention which, encouraged by our Air Ministry, is being developed in Great Britain to some purpose, and is already providing employment.

On the other hand, the variable-pitch propeller, and also the Diesel type of aero engine, are instances of "marking time" in Great Britain, whereas in the U.S.A. they are in regular use, operational experience thus being built up before actual perfection is attained; research in the laboratory of the open air proceeds hand-in-hand with that of the indoor scientist.

We must never forget that, as regards air power, it is of vital importance also to maintain our manufacturing nucleus ready for rapid expansion in time of need, and also to encourage training and reserves. All these things depend upon research, upon the possession of many aircraft—civil and military—and upon the maintenance of busy air lines.

CHORUS GIRLS BRING SPARKLE TO STUDIO LOT

It was like old times on the big First National stages when the choruses for "Gold Diggers of 1933" were being rehearsed and filmed.

For the first time in almost three years the whole studio lot had the "back stage" look. Gaily bedecked girls flooded the studio restaurant at the noon hour and impeded traffic during the recesses between their rehearsals.

Music was heard again on all sides, after long months in which it had been relegated strictly into the background of titles and sentimental scenes. Huge impressionistic sets, useful only in elaborate musical productions, occupied who stages at a time.

It is remarkable what the presence of two hundred chorus girls on a lot can do to increased its tempo and stir its collective pulse.
Busby Berkeley, who is the dance director responsible for the chorus ensembles in "The Kid From Spain" and "Gold Diggers," was in charge again and the backs of the white practice sweaters the girls were wearing bore the legend,
"Berkeley's Buddies."

Berkeley himself, a harassed young man who frequently grabs ideas "out of the blue" during rehearsals, seemed always to be in the exact geometrical centre of all the activity. He has been known to sit silently there for hours at a time, his hand over his eyes, either hunting for or waiting for an idea. When it comes—and to date it has always come, eventually—he tears into it with an enthusiasm that is soon transmitted to all who work with him.

For "Gold Diggers of 1933" Berkeley planned seven principal chorus numbers. Mervyn LeRoy, who directed the picture with its roster of stars and featured players, including Warren William,
Joan Blondell, Bob Keeler, Dick
Powell, Alice Mackintosh and Guy Kibbee, had a hand in developing some of these ensemble ideas, too, but the lion's share of credit for the chorus work belongs to Berkeley.

Perhaps the most spectacular number planned for this picture, and, as far as Berkeley is concerned, for any picture, is the "shadow waltz" in which fifty girls in dresses of transparent white silk dance up and down a futuristic rainbow bridge, playing lighted violins against a velvet black background.

Such a number, with its variations and complications, many of them worked out as they went along, required long weeks of rehearsal and many days and nights of actual filming. The set designed for this number was a surprising affair even in Hollywood. The fifty girls were working on it, incidentally, when the earthquake which did so much damage in Southern California recently, rocked the stage. The set had been strongly built with steel reinforcements, and Berkeley's coolness and the long training of the girls, accustomed to obeying orders, prevented any accidents or injuries.

Berkeley's work on the picture went on long after the comedy drama, which the chorus numbers punctuated, had been completed so far as Director LeRoy and most of the principal players were concerned.

The "Petting In The Park" number, an original dance routine planned to match the lyrics of one of the picture's featured songs, was worked out with an elaborate procession of the seasons which necessitated the complete redressing of the large set four times.

Other equally fantastic settings were designed for songs known as "We're in the money" and "My Forgotten Man" and Berkeley planned spectacular routines for each. Now he is getting ready to do another good job on "Footlight Parade."

First National seem to feel that much of the renewed public interest in lavishly mounted musical dramas is due to the quality of Berkeley's chorus work. He has made Hollywood song and chorus conscious again. He is doing much to bring back the atmosphere of old times at the studios. Old times and better times, too.

DRAMA IN THE VILLAGES OF ENGLAND

Mr. Shaw Explains

Mr. Shaw made it clear that the British Drama League was not the British amateur movement. The main business of the British Drama League was to get rid of that sort of amateurism altogether. In the villages, somehow, one found people genuinely enthusiastic over the drama, many of them really desiring to do the highest and most interesting type of drama.

"That is what brings them naturally in immediate and personal contact with me," he said amid laughter. "Very often the little devoted bands, before they can give their performance—I won't say that they have to pawn their shirts, but it very often comes to something near that!"

"They may have a few rows of seats of members in the front—a few of the gentry who had been induced to pay half-a-crown. The rest pay something like 2d. Sometimes the performances of my plays have taken place in these conditions. The receipts, we shall say, are fifteen shillings. Now, what is the author to get? What can he expect in such circumstances?"

"The playwrights have never thought about their position, but have kept up the ridiculous superstition. What do some of them do?
They go to these unfortunate people, who have beggared themselves to give a dramatic performance out of a pure love of art and have managed to get 15s. out of the country, and then these gentlemen say 'Five guineas, please.' Are there any words of mine that can sufficiently condemn such outrageous and ridiculous conduct?"

It was not right that they should charge these five-guinea fees, which were merely an act of vengeance in the past, to people who set out to present the drama through a love of acting and love of seeing the drama.

"PILGRIMAGE"

Norman Forster And Marian Nixon Score

"Pilgrimage," the new Fox drama, comes to the King's Theatre next Sunday. It is heralded as one of the outstanding motion picture productions of the current season.

The story of the film is reported as one of the most unusual ever to be presented on the screen. It revolves around the love of a mother for her son which becomes so tense that it turns into a burning hatred. It is the story of a mother who sends her son to war and death in order to keep him from marrying the girl he loves. She is philosophically content with the fact that the girl will not have her son, even if it does mean that he must remain only a memory in her own heart. She tries to brush him from her conscience. She is strong in her determination to

"MONEY FOR NOTHING"

Comedy At The Queen's

The current attraction at the Queen's Theatre "Money for Nothing" proved to be a very acceptable picture and is just the type that one would want to see to chase away that tired feeling engendered by hard work during the day. The film has a sufficient element of scintillating humour about it to make it appeal to one and all.

There are some very clever jokes in it and the plot moves quite rapidly. Seymour Hicks and the supporting cast include well-known stars, including Charles Farrell.

The story commences in Monte Carlo where Seymour Hicks as Jeff Cheddar contemplates suicide. A nice girl comes on the scene and is led to believe that Hicks is someone who could save her father's fortune. Hicks allows himself to be persuaded to leave for London where, allowing the deception to carry on, he develops an unusual situation, whereby the fortune of the pretty girl and her fiancé is saved.

You would think that like most pictures, the hero marries the heroine in the final scene, but in "Money for Nothing" the final scene is nothing like that. The ending is definitely unusual and sends you away chuckling over the many funny situation throughout the story.

In addition to the main attraction a short comedy entitled "Good Medicine" is included. This is one of those short films that is full of wit and fun that puts one in very good humour for the main attraction.

drive him from her life. But in later years, she sees just such a romance as was her son's being shattered by a selfish mother, and she devotes herself to the saving of the two strange lovers.

Herietta Crossman, who will be remembered for her splendid character portrayals on both the stage and the screen, plays the leading role of the mother who knows it is not too late to correct her life's greatest error. Norman Foster plays the part of the son she sends to his death, and Marian Nixon is seen as his sweetheart, the innocent victim of the mother's wrath. Heather Angel, young English newcomer to the American screen is the young lover who, in subsequent years, is the means through which the mother effects her own reform. Others in the cast are Maurice Murphy, Hedda Hopper, Francis Ford, Jay Ward and Frances Rich. A number of screen stars of the past have important roles. Among these are Luella La Verne, Charley Grapewin, Robert Warwick, Louise Carter and Betty Blythe.

John Ford directed the production from the story of the same name by I. A. R. Wylie. The screen play was written by Philip Klein and the late Barry Conners, with dialogue provided by Dudley Nichols. William Collier, Sr., is the dialogue director.

Some of the most elaborate settings recently seen on the screen are said to have been built for this Fox production, one of the most important on the Fox Film schedule.

THE REBEL

THE CONQUERORS

Excellent 'Pioneer' Film At The Central

Packed in an array of twelve modest-looking tin cans lies a treasure representing a vast amount of cash and of human endeavour. Into these humble twelve containers has been crammed the work of 5,000 men, women and children who worked many days toward making "The Conquerors" the mightiest of all present-day motion pictures.

The work of the humblest carpenter to the highest executive is inscribed on strips of celluloid contained in those cans. And long before the film was ready to whirl through the cameras, many writers, technicians, historians and other specialists spent months in preparation.

For six months these experts scanned the pages of United States history seeking out the colourful high lights to inject into RKO Radio's spectacular saga of American history.

From 1873 to 1933—every breath America has breathed in its fight for growth and commercial development—is portrayed by "The Conquerors" with fidelity to the romance and growth of a great nation.

William A. Wellman, the director, did not make "The Conquerors" within the confines of studio walls. Twice he took his crew and company to northern parts of California to photograph in their own settings some of the stirring scenes in the production.

At Cooperstown, California, Wellman photographed a duplicate of the first train that ever travelled west.

At Stockton, California, the director employed more than 500 men and women to participate in the canal boat sequence.

Each sequence in the picture, which treats of the three major depressions that have visited the United States only to release their clutches in the face of an ever-rising prosperity, has been accorded the same faithfulness of expert casting and production.

An entire city, showing its growth through the years from 1873 to 1933, was built and rebuilt during the filming of the picture which co-stars Richard Dix and Ann Harding in a great cast of great names.

This was the city of Fort Allen, Nebraska—the little town which Roger and Caroline Standish, played by Dix and Miss Harding, travelled by stage-coach on their honeymoon. It was there that the couple, entranced by the romantic and commercial prospects of the western frontier, settled to make their home. It was there that Roger founded the first bank and, with Caroline, succeeded in having the railroad brought through the city in which they believed.

To show the various stages of development in the town during the span of sixty years, more than four hundred carpenters were constantly kept busy building and rebuilding the structures that made up the city.

From the ends of the country, the director and his staff sent research workers to ferret out old huggies, old pianos and other authentic articles of distant periods.

And now "The Conquerors" resting between screenings in a dozen film cans makes its debut at the Central Theatre to-day.

"THE REBEL"

Showing At The King's

Vilma Banky come back! Absent from the motion picture studios for nearly three years, the beloved "Hungarian Rhapsody" has taken back the threat of permanent retirement she made following marriage to Rod LaRocque and once more graces the screen with her blonde loveliness in Universal's "The Rebel," in which she appears opposite Luis Trenker now at the King's Theatre.

Seven years ago Vilma Banky arrived in America, absolutely unknown. In the next five years was developed into one of the greatest drawing cards and most finished actresses in Hollywood. And the story back of her rise to film prominence in one of the most interesting ever to come out of the film capital.

Samuel Goldwyn discovered her when he was in Europe searching for a leading lady for "Ronald Colman." It just happened that he noticed her picture in a shop window in Budapest and, after a week's search for the original, gave up in despair. Meanwhile Miss Banky heard of Goldwyn's search; got an interview with him and was signed to her first American contract within twenty-four hours after their meeting.

Miss Banky was born in Hungary of a prosperous family, which had suffered great reverses during the war. Although she had had some experience in motion picture acting with German and Austrian film companies, her reputation had scarcely spread outside of Germany and Hungary.

Coming to America she was immediately established as the film find of the year, with her delightful performance opposite Ronald Colman in "The Dark Angel." Even greater success followed with her portrayals as Valentino's leading lady in "The Eagle" and "The Son of the Sheik," and with Colman in "The Magic Flame," "The Winning of Barbara Worth," "The Night of Love" and "Two Lovers."

Four years ago she settled all persistent rumours that she was becoming interested in any one of the prominent motion picture actors who besieged her by marrying Rod LaRocque and almost simultaneously announcing her retirement from the screen.

They are regarded as one of movie-dom's happiest married couples. Recently she and Rod decided that resumption of her screen career would in no way interfere with her marital happiness so she accepted Universal's offer of a comeback as the heroine in "The Rebel," which has another silent day favorite, Victor Varconi, in the cast and which was directed by Trenker and Edwin H. Knopf.

"MURDERS IN THE ZOO"

Melodrama At The Queen's

"Murders in the Zoo," mystery melodrama featuring Charlie Ruggles, Lionel Atwill, Kathleen Burke (the Panther Woman), Randolph Scott, John Lodge, and Gail Patrick, has been booked to open to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre.

"Murders in the Zoo" centres around a sadistic madman insanely jealous of his wife. On a trip to India, to collect new specimens for a zoo in which he is interested, he sews up the lips of a man who, while drunk, had kissed his wife, and then leaves him to the mercy of jungle tigers. En route back to the U.S. he notices that a fellow-passenger is paying too much attention to his wife, but he does not act immediately.

The Zoo, in financial stress, has meanwhile arranged for a great banquet to be held in its carnivora house. To it are invited the city's wealthy, to be solicited for funds to aid it in the crisis. The jealous husband sees to it that his wife's admirer is present. Then, at the height of the dinner, the latter screams suddenly in pain, collapses and dies. The dinner breaks up as hysterical guests flee. The wife, convinced that her husband has had some connection with the killing, rushes to tell zoo officials her suspicion. But she is brutally killed before she can carry out her plans.

A young scientist on the zoo staff ultimately discovers the truth, but the madman turns the wild beasts loose and attempts to flee. The picture comes to a breathless climax in the debacle that follows.

LONDON AIR-MAIL LETTER

As long ago as last year there was talk of another post for the popular General, as he then was. However, the Duke saw the wisdom of allowing him to complete the preparation of his Chicago flight. That was a triumph.

UNSELFISH LEADER. A friend who knows him well tell me that he had an insight into General Balbo's qualities as a leader when the Italian Schneider Cup team was defeated by the British at Venice in 1927.

His one thought was to temper the blow for the brave young Italian airmen who had tried, against hopeless technical handicaps, to save the day. To him, of course, the defeat meant much more even than to them.

It was due largely to his determination that Italy now holds all those air records which were lately Great Britain's.

AN ORNATE COACH. I had a glimpse yesterday of the Lord Mayor's Coach, all newly furnished for Thursday's ceremony. Is there any vehicle still in use more lavishly, and variously decorated?

When built a century and a half ago its ornamentation was entrusted to an Italian painter.

Unfortunately, as more than one Lord Mayor has complained, the comfort of the great old coach is by no means comparable with its magnificence.

ECHOES OF 1859

58—Journalism in Hong Kong

(AUGUST 1, 1930).
There has been a good deal said lately about the value of the copy-right of Hongkong newspapers. We have no hesitation in stating our conviction that the value of two of them at least is nil. A newspaper to be worth anything, should be the exponent of the views of some section of the community, the advocate of some fixed principle, the antagonist of some defined abuses, or—eschewing principles and partisanship, it should earn a name for latest intelligence and general information.

In other parts of the world, newspapers are maintained by the different sections of society whose views they may respectively advocate. In China the very same system used to prevail, and although Montague and Capulet formed the sole distinction of principle, still that distinction became so broadly marked as to answer every purpose, and eliminate all the sparks that antagonism ever on more important subjects, usually emits. But the cessation of this Colony scattered the heads of the houses. The Montagues and the Capulets became reconciled in resisting the unjust acts of H.M. Government—they felt no more pleasure in their journals, which consequently having no more banners to fight under, went to pigs and whistles in a very short time. The wars and jars of the two great houses it is true might not be either amusing or instructive, except to their particular partisans, but when a competition naturally arose as to which paper should be the better backed, the public were guaranteed a certain amount of intelligence and information from high sources.

Journalism in Hongkong, after its cessation, as in all other new Colonies, soon became rife, and fell into hands with whom the mercantile community had no sympathy. As the Colony declined this arrangement increased, until wars and jars, local and colonial, took the place of the feuds of the Montagues and Capulets, and being every whit as frivolous to all but partisans, were not only far more acrimonious and capacious, but entirely lacked the benefits of that intelligence which was of old elicited from the rival house.

Thus, editing, printing and publishing became synonymous here. The rebellion and the Canton rupture materially accelerated the prosperity of the Colony, but the press had fallen so low that it had become an actual disgrace to be in any way connected with it. The first step towards a new order of things naturally proved fatal to some of the low papers we referred to, and very shortly two of them fell into market. The other we suspect would have followed but for the support of the Government. People in Europe became sick of them, and we happened to find out in a very singular manner that nearly half the number sent are refused and sent back.

WHERE STREET SLEEPERS WILL BE HOUSED

Plans Of Local Society Completed:
Accommodation Available To-morrow

A DESCRIPTION OF THE "SHELTER"

After months of tireless work, the Street Sleepers Shelter Society have completed all their arrangements and our street sleepers will now have some shelter to go to in the cold winter nights which are beginning.

For some days past, St. Peter's Church has been a hive of activity where workmen have been employed to install the bunks and to put up the necessary outhouses connected with the scheme.

The place will be ready for street sleepers to-morrow night, and officers of the Society were busy on Tuesday and again last night passing the news round to those whose circumstance compel them to sleep in the streets.

In all, 105 bunks have been installed in the Church, these being somewhat after the fashion of accommodation in ships, the bunks being in tiers of three. There is an examination shed at the entrance of the Church, where a number of volunteers will be on duty. Their business will be to look closely at the potential "customer" so as to keep out cases which are not really destitute. The officials fear that a number of coolies will try and take advantage of this form of charity to obtain a night's lodging when they might be well able to pay for it elsewhere.

A "CLOAK ROOM"

After the applicants have satisfied the volunteers that they are genuine street sleepers, they will be medically examined by doctors who have volunteered their services to the Society. The object of the medical examination is to exclude men suffering from contagious diseases. If found to be free from such diseases, the applicant will then be registered at an examination shed which is near the Des Voeux Road entrance of the Church. Following this, they will be passed into a long shed, where hot water and soap will be supplied so that the men could wash themselves clean before retiring.

After washing up, each person will be provided with a pair of sandals and he wears these until he turns in. There will be a "Cloak Room" at the back of the Church where the sleepers can deposit their worldly belongings each night and take them away with him the next morning.

A kitchen has also been built to the back of the church where there are four large cauldrons in which hot water will be prepared. In addition to this, free tea will be available all through the night.

The bunks themselves are constructed of iron, with bed-boards of wood. For the moment there will be no blankets, but thanks to the generosity of Messrs. Davis Boas & Co., the Society are able to provide the sleepers with gunny bags to sleep on and to cover themselves with. Messrs. Davis Boas presented 250 bags to the Society, and the Society purchased 300 more. These bags will be furnished once a week by the Government free of charge.

No detail appears to have been overlooked, the authorities having even provided sanitary means.

MORE "SUPPORT" WANTED

In relating the efforts of the Society on behalf of the poor, one must make mention of the unselfishness of the officers connected with the whole project. They have not only accomplished what they set out to do, but have also done it on a very lean purse. The Society had had hopes of receiving $5,000 from the public, but to date only $3,700 had been received, and no doubt when the work of the Society is better known, there will be many sympathisers who may help to provide much needed funds. Quite a number of voluntary workers have signified their intention of doing their bit; prominent amongst them being the members of the local Y.M.C.A. Several doctors too, are sacrificing their time by attending at the Shelter from 6-9 p.m. daily.

DRIFTWOOD

By the Beachcomber

There is an old saying that calamities always come in threes and in Canton this seems to be true. During the past six weeks, three Chinese have committed suicide. Every one of these attained their end by jumping out of an hotel window.

According to a ships officer who visits that port regularly, the last victim committed suicide at about two o'clock one morning and was allowed to block the public highway until after twelve noon the next day. Fortunately it is not summer weather.

Missing Dynamite
The rumour that the missing dynamite from Green Island was seen bogging in the harbour was vehemently denied by the water police yesterday. They say that while it is possible, it is not probable that it could be floating about without their hearing of it.

Coolies Registered
Police along the Kowloon docks are doing a good thing by regulating the coolies. In the past these baggage carriers have been in the habit of surrounding the unsuspecting passenger and nearly tugging his grips from his grasp. Now a strong force is keeping them in order and only allows those representing hotels,

RECEPTION AT U.S. CLUB

Colourful Assembly
Last Night

American citizens residing in Hongkong gathered at a reception in the American club, last night, held in honour of Admiral and Mrs. F. Upham and the officers and their wives of the American Asiatic fleet, part of which is lying in the harbour of Hongkong at present. Consul General and Mrs. Jenkins, Admiral and Mrs. Upham received the guests. The lovely gowns of the ladies interspersed with the uniforms of the officers made a perfect setting to a most enjoyable gathering.

Amongst those present were noticed Consul General and Mrs. Jenkins, and the Consular body, Admiral and Mrs. Upham, Mr. Nelson T. Johnson, U.S. Minister to China from Peking; Mr. and Mrs. Bigger, Mr. and Mrs. Le-Ferre, Dr. and Mrs. Sommers, Mr. and Mrs. Ballantyne, Mr. and Mrs. Dudgeon, Mrs. Frazier, Miss Carter, Miss Loomis, Mrs. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Tracy, Miss Sayne, Mr. Schultz, Mr. and Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. MacKay, Miss Varts, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Howard, Mrs. Bryte, Mr. and Mrs. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Hill, Mr. Fethrick, Mrs. Whitmore, Mr. and Mrs. Gee, Mr. and Mrs. Sangster, Mrs. Sayer, Mr. Clark, Mr. Gardner, Mr. O'Keefe, Mr. and Mrs. Otto and a host of others too numerous to mention.

There were so many beautiful gowns that it is almost impossible to describe them, but among some of the outstanding ones were those of Mrs. Jenkins, who looked charming in a stunning gown of black velvet with hat to match. Mrs. Upham was dressed in a creation of grey and black. Mrs. Bigger dressed in a very pretty green outfit, finished off with fox fur and wearing a cute little black hat looked very smart. Mrs. Gee wore a delightful cocktail dress with Kolinsky fur sleeves. Mrs. Le-Ferre and her charming sister looked very sweet in black ensembles with hats to match. Mrs. Sommers, wife of the popular Dr. Sommers, was dressed in a saxe-blue outfit. Mrs. Frank Howard looked delightful in a black creation with hat to match with trimmings of red. Mrs. Hill was dainty in her little sports outfit of light green trimmed in brown, with a jaunty little turban. Mrs. Bryte, the popular manageress of Maize's, possessed a quiet dignity and charm in a black creation trimmed with silver. The officers wives lent added charm with their latest American styles, and being a mere man the "Daily Press" representative cannot hope to describe them.

etc., near the gangway until the ship has been berthed some time.

Oil on Water
Patches of oil on the water between the star ferry pier and the Kowloon side created a beautiful spectrum and caused many passengers to wonder where it came from. Inquiry resulted in the information being given that it was from the submarines riding at anchor in the harbour.

S.P.C.A. METHODS STRONGLY CRITICISED

Allegations Not Supported By Evidence

Strong criticism of the methods of the S.P.C.A. was made by Mr. H. J. Armstrong yesterday during the hearing of a case in which Mr. G. P. Murphy of the R.W.D. was summoned before Mr. Wynne Jones at the Magistracy.

Mr. Murphy was summoned on two charges, the first accusing him of having chopped the head of a small chow dog in a wanton and needlessly cruel manner on November 12, and the second accusing him of having dumped the carcass of the dog on a vacant piece of ground in Waterloo Road. Giving evidence, Mr. G. P. Murphy, inspector employed by the S.P.C.A., stated that on the morning of November 15, he received certain instructions by telephone, as the result of which he proceeded to a vacant piece of ground near No. 90 Waterloo Road.

Carcass Found

There he found the carcass of a small Chinese chow dog, the head of which had been severed from the body, only a piece of skin connecting the two together. He removed the body to the Dogs' Home and notified the Hon. Secretary of the S.P.C.A. of the matter. On the instructions of the Hon. Secretary, witness placed the matter in the hands of the Police.

The carcass, said witness, had the appearance of having been hacked from the body, and was in an advanced state of decomposition.

On the night of November 17, he received instructions to call upon Mr. Murphy to see whether he would make a statement.

Mr. Armstrong—I don't think that statement is admissible.

Witness—That's about all I can say, your Worship.

His Worship—Is that all the evidence you have?—Yes.

The evidence you have just given discloses nothing at all. The fact that you found a dead dog on a vacant piece of ground in Waterloo Road does not affect the defendant in this case at all. Well, I'm all by myself. I have no solicitor to help me.

But all the same, if you bring a charge against Mr. Murphy you must be able to prove something.

Detective-Sergeant Lamont, who was watching the case for the Police, suggested that witness might be able to say whose dog it was.

On being questioned, witness stated that the dog belonged to Mr. Murphy. He knew that because he recognised it.

No Evidence

His Worship—Anyway there is absolutely no evidence on the first charge. I think it is wrong to bring a summons like this against anybody unless you are in a position to produce evidence to support it.

Mr. Armstrong said it was a serious charge that had been brought against the defendant and one which reflected against his good name if it could be proved. The Society could not only prove nothing, but could only say that a dead dog was found.

It is an absolute disgrace that this case should have been brought before the Court like this. I understand the difficulties under which the S.P.C.A. have to work, but I think they ought to have something much stronger than this evidence before your Worship before they prosecute.

His Worship—I agree with you that there is no evidence what-

His Worship added that before the Society could bring a case of this sort before the Court, it must be certain that its informant or informants were willing to come to the Court to stand by the Society. That was the most important thing. Unless the Society was certain on that point, it could not take out a summons at all.

The Second Charge

As regards the second charge, Mr. Armstrong said defendant did not know for sure how the body got there, but he had a very good idea.

In the witness box, Mr. Murphy stated that he did not know where the dog was found and he did not know who placed it there. He had given no instructions for it to be placed there. When the dog was dead, he gave instruction to a coolie to take the body to the end of Waterloo Road and bury it on the hill-side.

His Worship—That disposes of the second summons too.

Mr. Armstrong—I suggest that as a friendly gesture, the Society should pay my client's cost.

What Had Happened

Mr. Armstrong added that he ought to explain the circumstances under which the dog was killed, otherwise a wrong impression might be given to the public. Defendant purchased the dog, which was only about five weeks old, in a bird shop at the beginning of the month. It was bought to replace one which was lost as Mrs. Murphy was rather upset on losing it.

The dog was very happy and contented with its owners and both Mr. and Mrs. Murphy soon became fond of it. On November 10, it started to get ill, due probably to having swallowed some chicken bone. On the following day it became worse despite all that could be done for it and refused to take any food whatever.

On Sunday, it had become definitely worse and there seemed to be no hope of the dog surviving. It began to exude pus from the nose and started to whine in a piteous manner.

With the view to taking it out of its suffering, Mr. Murphy took the dog to the Matsukok slaughter house, but he found only a Chinese there. No wishing to leave the dog behind, he took it home again.

There was no European on duty at the Dogs' Home as it was a Sunday.

By this time, the dog was very much worse, and Mr. Murphy decided to take the animal out of suffering. He asked his "boy" to get a coolie to kill the dog, but when the coolie arrived, both Mr. and Mrs. Murphy became very much upset.

How It Was Killed

The coolie was sent away but was called for again later. The dog was taken out in the yard and was knocked unconscious with the blunt end of a chopped, after which its throat was cut. The body was wrapped up and the coolie was told to take it to the hill-side to bury it. The coolie was paid $1 for the job.

Mr. Armstrong said the Inspector was not correct when he said the head was decapitated as the throat only was cut. There could be no question of cruelty whatever. Mr. Murphy did what he thought at the time to be the most humane way of putting the animal out of pain.

MR. OSIAS IN COLONY

Strong Advocate For Independent P.I.

There arrived in Hongkong this morning, the Hon. C. Osias, Resident Trade Commissioner for the Philippines in Washington D.C. One of the staunchest advocates of the movement for fighting the independence of the Islands. In direct contrast to President Quizon, who was in the Colony a few weeks ago, Mr. Osias is a strong supporter of the Hare-Hawes Cutting Law, and when interviewed yesterday stated that it was his belief that had the Bill been put to the people of the Islands in a fair plebiscite it would never have been defeated. Questioned as to his attitude towards the present independence Commission which is en route to Washington, he said that even though they were his political enemies, he wished them every success and should they obtain an act as good or better than the one that had just been defeated, he would give them his whole-hearted support. "If the new commission cannot get a bill in January, approved by the commission in February and acted upon favourably by one of the houses of congress by April, then there will be no independence received from the seventy-third session of Congress."

The Commissioner was pleased to learn that during his visit here Mr. Quizon had made no mention of the military reservation clause of the defeated bill which had been the President's chief reason for opposing it, and hoped that he had suffered a change of heart. "The matter supreme to me," he went on to say, "is the independence of my country and I will be among the first to commend the present commission should they obtain satisfactory results."

Although a man of dynamic personality, one of the greatest charms possessed by the visiting statesman is his disarming modesty. When he left Manila, more than twelve thousand people were on the dock to bid him farewell, but in telling the story he said, "They did not come to cheer me, but the cause I represent."

Mr. Osias, who was educated in the United States, is still a young man. He is president of the National University in Manila, and has represented the Philippines in Washington for more than five years.

He leaves aboard the Empress of Japan for America to-morrow.

REUTER STAFF CHANGES

Mr. M. J. Cox New
Japan Correspondent

Mr. C. J. Chancellor, General Manager for Reuters in the Far East, has announced the following staff transfers which have been authorised by Sir Roderick Jones, the Chairman of Reuters:

Early next month Mr. M. J. Cox, who has handled the Reuter service in Shanghai for nearly 22 years, is proceeding to Tokyo to take up the position of Reuters Correspondent in Japan, in succession to Captain M. D. Kennedy, who is transferring to London.

Since 1931 Mr. Cox has held the appointment of Manager of Reuters Far Eastern News Services.

For the first time Reuters will also have a full-time staff correspondent in Osaka. This is necessitated by the growing importance of Osaka as a financial centre and the development of Reuters Commercial Services to meet the demands of business men for accurate and quick financial information.

The Osaka post is being filled by Mr. J. E. Henry, who for some years has held the position of Reuters Manager in Hongkong. Mr. W. O'Neill is taking Mr. Henry's place in Hongkong.

Mr. Frank Oliver, Reuters' Peking Manager, is being transferred to Shanghai next month to take charge of Reuters Editorial Department in Shanghai and the Far Eastern News Services.

Mr. E. H. Ward arrived in Shanghai last week from London to work as an assistant to Mr. W. R. Mowll, Manager of Reuters Far Eastern Commercial Services and the Reuter Shanghai Ticker Installation.—Reuter

GROWTH IN AIR-BORNE LOADS

10,000 Miles by Air and Ocean
in 13 Days

Striking examples are forthcoming of the time-savings that can be effected in the dispatch of urgent loads over long distances, by a combined use of air and ocean transport.

The other day an express parcel containing documents was consigned by air-mail and ocean liner from Victoria, British Columbia, to Nairobi, in Kenya Colony.

This packet, on its first stage, was flown by air-mail to New York. Here it arrived in time to catch the liner "EUROPA," and after crossing the Atlantic, and when still 800 miles from Land's End, it was catapulted from the liner, with other express mail matter, and flown by seaplane to Southampton.

After this the parcel was air-borne by Imperial Airways from London via France, Italy, and Egypt to Africa, duly reaching Nairobi after having travelled 10,000 miles by air and sea in 13 days. By ordinary transport the journey would have occupied more than a month.

Not long ago, as another instance of long-distance transport by mail-plane and liner, an express parcel travelled 12,000 miles by air and sea from Los Angeles, California, to Poona, in India. In this case, the total transit time was 18 days, which represented a saving of 15 days over the fastest surface transport.

Further instances of the facilities which exist for express dispatch by air and sea, were given by an official of Imperial Airways.

New York as Start

"Taking New York as a starting-point," he said, "a parcel can now travel from that city across the Atlantic, and on say to Cairo, in not more than 10 days, as compared with 20, by any other means; while a packet by ocean and air will reach Baghdad, from New York, in 11 days, as contrasted with 36 to 42 by ordinary transport. Even from New York to Cape Town, the air and sea transit time is now not more than 18 days, this comparing with from 28 to 32 days by surface travel."

"To glance through some recent batches of aerial waybills," he added, "is to realise not only the growth in the quantity, but also in the variety, of air-borne loads.

To take just a few typical examples, one now finds of the kind increase in the use of the airway for flying urgently required parts and fittings out from this country to engineering plants located near the stations along our Empire air-lines. Very considerable time-savings can be effected by sending such consignments by air, thus reducing to a minimum the period during which any portion of a plant has to remain idle, awaiting some essential part. There is also a growing use of our air services in the dispatch abroad, and over Empire routes, of urgently needed spare parts for motor-cars. Here one may mention the case of a stranded motor-car party who, though they were at the time in the heart of Africa, obtained a spare part from London in not more than a week by air, whereas by surface transport it might have been a case of not weeks but of months.

Air Cargoes

"Figuring often in air cargoes are finds, valuable pictures, delicate electrical and other apparatus, and fragile articles of many kinds. In such cases the care in handling which each consignment receives, and the absence of vibration while in flight, renders the airway an ideal means of transport."

"Frequently, air-borne, at the present time, are urgently-needed medicines and vaccines, and such things as manufacturers' samples. The aerial transport of live-stock is also greatly on the increase, ranging from a fully-grown lion, coming over to perform in a circus in this country, to a crate-load of day-old chicks, consigned from Croydon to some poultry-farm on the Continent."

"Strange are the cargoes we carry sometimes. Recently, for example, our Africa service was utilised for the rapid dispatch from Port Elizabeth to Tanganyika of a number of live ladybirds needed in combating a mealy-bug plague in the coffee plantations. Not long ago, also, we brought over to this country from Africa, by air, for laboratory purposes in connection with the insect-fighting campaign, several crate-loads of live locusts."

this courtesy, and sent a message expressing his hope that King Edward would visit Paris on his way home. This was the very excuse for which the King had been hoping, and he accepted at once.

The King arrived in Paris on May 1, 1903. In the procession from the station the King drove in the President's coach, and I followed in a carriage with M. Delcasse, the Foreign Minister. Although there were huge crowds who cheered the King, I could not help noticing that here and there were some small groups who shouted: "Vive les Boers!"

The King spent three days in Paris, continued Lord Hardinge, and what set the seal on the success of his mission was the visit he paid to the Hotel de Ville. It was in a short speech there that he used the words that, excited the greatest enthusiasm throughout Paris: "C'est avec le plus grand plaisir que je reviens a Paris, ou je me trouve comme chez moi."

TRIUMPHAL PROGRESS
So great an impression did this phrase make that the rest of the King's stay was a triumphal progress. It took his carriage a whole hour to drive from the Opera to the British Embassy, the streets were so blocked with cheering crowds.

Lord Hardinge then welcomed M. Corbin, who began his speech in faultless English and finished it in French, recalled the services in the cause of Anglo-French friendship which had been rendered both by Lord Hardinge and the Earl of Derby—who presided at the banquet.

Lord Derby, replying to the toast of his health submitted by M. Corbin, added his tribute to "That very human, Englishman, King Edward."

Young Man Sent To Prison

Having pleaded guilty on Monday to a charge of harbouring an unmarried girl of 15, Kwok Kam-wing (22) was yesterday sentenced to four weeks' hard labour.

The case was remanded for consideration by the S.C.A. of a proposal by the defendant to marry the girl.

Detective-Inspector Elston said the relations of both parties had been investigated and the defendant was not in a position to marry, and therefore, the law must take its course. He was out of work and the girl's father objected to the marriage.

The offence was serious, and it was suggested that the defendant enticed the girl, who was expecting a child by him. Defendant's father kept a cloth factory in Fatsan.

HONG KONG, NOVEMBER 30, 1933.

THE NEW TOWN OF WANCHAI

Because of the more powerful beams of a star of greater magnitude, Kowloon, the light of the lesser star of Wanchai is practically obscured. But in its more modest orbit it is quite as active and there are many proofs of an increase in intensity.

The reclamation of Wanchai is of comparatively recent construction. Previous to that the district facing the sea and bordered on one side by Jardine's and on the other by the Naval Dockyard, was of an exceedingly mean order. It still is, though the new town of Wanchai is having its influence even here.

Wanchai itself, which blossomed forth from the reclamation is of another order. True, the growth is rank in many places, but such is to be expected in any area which has not received the undivided attention of the cultivator. And now there are many signs that it is receiving more and more attention for here and there, unobtrusively, the growth is showing promise of finer things, so much so that we are almost inclined to turn Well-said and prophesy on its future. So unobtrusive, too, has been the change that it is only recently that it has been brought home to our observation.

To begin, Wanchai claims three of the best streets in the town, Hennessy Road and Lockhart Road, both named after former Governors of the Colony, and Gloucester Road, after the Duke of Gloucester. Hennessy Road is best known by motorists, and cyclists for the disastrous influence it has on their speedometers and in this respect it may be considered quite a source of revenue to the Crown. This naturally brings to our mind the No. 2 Police Station built conveniently on Gloucester Road, above which are very pleasant European quarters, part of which are occupied by one of the A.S.P.

The Sailors' Home, built with foresight at but a few minutes walk from the entrance to the Naval Yard, though not on the reclamation, is in Wanchai and is a great improvement on the home of some years ago, being quite an imposing building. However, it shrinks into insignificance in comparison with the two massive structures, one already completed, the other in the final stages of interior decoration. These two, the Seamen's Institute and the Naval Canteen, are amongst the largest buildings in the Colony, standing foursquare on the waterfront. (We admit that while they are landmarks on the waterfront, they cannot be considered as marking any epochal stage in aesthetics.)

Touching on the question of general residence, in the Lok Kwok Hotel the district can boast an up-to-date establishment, and there are several blocks of quite presentable Chinese flats, compact, airy and with modern conveniences.

Bordering the streets shops of all descriptions have opened their doors, many of them well set out and selling a moderately good class of article. Then there are motor showrooms, garages and service stations which are models of display and artistic execution. Pharmacies rub shoulders with radio stores and the really ultra-modern window of a firm of commercial artists is sandwiched between a tea-room and a sporting-goods shop. For entertainment there are fern-decorated restaurants, a cool and spacious cinema, The Oriental, and inquiry of iniquities, a dancing academy.

Of open spaces there are several, the Rotary Club playground for children being notable, and second only to the huge open space between Hennessy Road and Johnston Road, designated as "The Lungs" of Wanchai, on which the authorities have wisely forbidden any building. "The Lungs" will, we hope, one day be turned into a City Square with playgrounds, trees and green grass, thus forming the only one of this nature, so vitally needed, in the Town.

As we have pointed out, the growth is rank in parts, but it is beginning to receive the attention that it needs. The Race Course is only a few minutes walk away. New apartment buildings are shortly to be erected on the site of the old Jockey Club stables. We are inclined to wonder whether the trend of the Town is not eastwards, via Wanchai.

ROAD ACCIDENTS IN BRITAIN

Ministry of Transport's Report

London, Nov. 29. The Ministry of Transport have issued a report containing a careful analysis of road accidents during the first six months of this year resulting in death. The number of such accidents was 2,988 which is 29 greater than in the corresponding period of 1932 and the number of persons killed, 3,061.

The report shows there are four peak periods for such accidents between 7 and 9 a.m., when people are going to their work, during the luncheon hours 12 to 2 p.m., during the hour of return from work 5 to 6 p.m. and between 10 and 11 p.m., when many people are returning from amusements. Of the days of the week Sunday has the best record and Saturday the worst, while the average number of persons killed on public holidays is about six higher than the Saturday average. Just over half of the persons killed were pedestrians, and of these over half were crossing roads.

In only 255 of the accidents analysed was excessive speed described as a contributory cause. —British Wireless.

FRENCH BY-ELECTIONS

Left Parties Lose A Seat

Paris, Nov. 27. Two parliamentary by-elections took place in France yesterday both resulting in the loss of one seat by the Left parties. One fight occurred at St. Quentin where the Socialists were defeated by the Independents, while at Villeneuve the Radicals were beaten by candidates of the extreme Right. At the municipal by-election in Paris to refill the seat vacated by the murder of the theatre manager Dufrenoy, the Radical candidate was heavily out-voted by the representative of the Right. —Transocean.

ANTI-ZIONIST DISORDERS

London, Nov. 27. The authorities of Jerusalem are taking extraordinary precautions to maintain order during the general strike proclaimed by the Arab executive committee for to-day and Wednesday. The strike has been ordered in protest against the legal proceedings against the arrested leaders of the Arab independence movement who were held responsible for the latest anti-Zionist disorders. —Transocean.

UNDER-SECRETARIES NOT WANTED

JAPANESE TRADE COMPETITION

Impatient Discussion In Commons

London, Nov. 29. Several House of Commons members at yesterday's session showed impatience over the Government's alleged inactivity concerning Japanese competition in the cotton, rayon, woollen and worsted trades.

The President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Walter Runciman, explained that the Government was fully aware that industries other than the textiles were affected by Japanese competition.

The while question was receiving the most careful consideration, he said.

However, it was clearly desirable, in the first place, to see what was likely to be the outcome of the present discussions with Japanese industrialists with regard to cotton and rayon goods.

The House need not be apprehensive, he said. The Government was moving all the time and promised every assistance to woollen industrialists if they made similar representations as had the leaders of the textile industries. —Reuter.

"Agree or Fight"

BRITISH MANUFACTURERS' VIEW

London, Nov. 29. "We must agree or fight," declared Brigadier-General Sir William Alexander the war-time Director of the Ministry of Munitions, speaking at the dinner in London, last night, of the National Union of Manufacturers, of which he is President.

He advocated the formulation of a national trade policy to deal with Japanese competition, and urged the Government to deal with the problem immediately on business lines and with the help of business men.

"We must know what terms we can offer and what terms we can accept. The Japanese have obviously thought it all out," he declared. —Reuter.

The notice is very short but it is hoped that as many as possible will make a special effort to attend, as Dr. Phoon would like to explain the duties.

THE ICE IS BROKEN!

Comments On The Hitler-Poncet Talks

Berlin, Nov. 28. The comments of the French press on the interview between German Chancellor, Adolf Hitler and the French Ambassador to Berlin, M. Francois-Poncet, as well as the importance which the French journals attach to this meeting, are quoted by the German press in extense, some papers, like "Voelkischer Beobachter" and "Deutsche Zeitung," even splashing the opinion of the Paris press on the first page.

"The French press welcomes the Hitler-Francois-Poncet talk," that is the headline of the story of "Voelkischer Beobachter," quoting as sub-headline a passage from a French paper: "Important prelude to direct Franco German negotiations."

"The ice is broken at last," says "Deutsche Zeitung." Some papers also quote, "Temps" which is now turning a somersault and suddenly opposes British mediation. —Transocean.

"PURIFICATION CAMPAIGN"

Undesirables Not Wanted

Moscow, Nov. 28. Special attention is directed to-day in an article of "Krasnaya Svesda," the central organ of the Red Army, that the purification campaign must be undertaken at once and with all strictness as "the enemy of the State continues to work secretly and determinedly with all its might against the security and maintenance of the State."

Although up till now, the paper declares, every year since the foundation of the Red Army has seen a campaign for the purging of all undesirable elements from within the ranks of the Soviet army, they have always found a possibility to start again their sly activity which now once and for all must be brought to a final stop. —Transocean.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

On the application of Mr. T. P. K. Kemble, the case in which a Chinese married woman was charged with obtaining goods from the Sincere Company by purporting that she was authorised to do so by Mr. Ma Tim Shing, was withdrawn. Mr. Kemble informed the Court that the woman had been certified as insane.

There will be a sales campaign, of special interest to Housekeepers as featured by one of the local department stores. The public's attention is drawn to this special feature particularly to the prices of the articles offered. Official announcement concerned will appear in the columns of our to-morrow's edition.

For failing to have watchmen present at their dynamite magazines on the hillside at Stanley, two contracting companies, the Hop Hing Company, and the Hang Sun Company, occupying unnumbered matchboxes on the hillside were each fined $25 by Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy yesterday. Sergeant O'Connell said the watchmen were away having food.

Judgment was awarded to the plaintiff in a claim for $250 by Leung Yim-chor, of 3, Yunnan Street, Yaumatei, against Peng Kai-hang, of 55, Cheongshawan Road, Shamshuipo, at the Supreme Court yesterday. The claim was for commission and reward due to plaintiff as broker in respect of property known as 224, Pook Wing Street, Shamshuipo, on or about October 14, 1932. Mr. C. Y. Kwan was for claimant and Mr. G. S. Ford defended.

Smart work on the part of Principal Chinese Detective Shek Tai, resulted in the appearance of Kwong Chau, 30, unemployed, before Mr. Balfour yesterday, charged with the theft of a gold watch and chain from Cheung Cheung, of 900, Des Voeux Road West. Detective Sergeant Fowle said complainant either lost or had his watch stolen at the Star Ferry wharf. He reported to the police and a description was circulated. Principal Chinese Detective Shek Tai, who was on patrol in Shanghai Street, Yaumatei, saw the defendant enter a goldsmith's shop and sell a gold chain for $112. He searched him, and found the watch.

Germany Preparing For Olympics

Berlin, November 25. Preparations in Germany for the Olympic Games in 1936 went a big step further with the establishment of a special instruction course for 500 young athletes coming from all parts of Germany who are slated to participate in the forthcoming Olympics. Under the guidance of experienced sport instructors and participants in former Olympic competitions, these "griffins" are living a Spartan life in the barracks of the German Station where they receive training in all branches of sports.

Their physical training begins at sunrise every morning and lasts until noon, when pupils and teachers assemble for their frugal meal. The afternoon is mainly devoted to hikes and lectures as well as to their professional training which by no means is allowed to be neglected.

The most important aim of these courses, however, is the development and strengthening of the spirit of true comradeship. —Transocean.

MORE GERMANS WANTED!

Campaign to Increase Birth Rate

Frankfurt-on-the-Main, November 22. With the intention to strengthen the recent nation-wide campaign for an increase of the birth-rate, with the first practical enforcement measures, the mayor of this city to-day issued an official demand to the bachelor-civil servants of Frankfurt to report on the prospects of their early entrance into the marital state.

On ground of the "best national and political interests" 1,800 officials were asked to give the reason why their nuptials had not already taken place. Promising State aid and encouragement in overcoming the difficulties standing between the civil servants and the altar, the mayor's appeal was given teeth by the declaration that the retention of paying positions by bachelors was calculated to injure the basis of existence of husbands and heads of families. —Transocean.

He said that early in 1934, regular schedule will be maintained by the Luftflotte but that a second steamer will be put into service having the same accommodation as the Westfalen as a reserve. —Transocean.

ULTIMATUM TO 19TH ROUTE ARMY

GIVEN A WEEK TO "CLEAN UP" BOGUS FUKIEN GOVERNMENT

"Will Destroy Jade And Stone Alike"

Nanking, November 29. The Nineteenth Route Army has been given a week by Chiang Kai-shek to "clean up the bogus Fukien Government and return to the Government fold," failing which the Government cannot help "destroying jade and stone alike."

This virtual ultimatum is contained in handbills which were distributed by Government planes, according to messages from Nanchang.

The G.P.C. has accepted Lo Wen Kan's resignation from the post of Foreign Minister.—Reuter.

19th ROUTE ARMY PRINCIPLES. (From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, November 29. The officers of the Nineteenth Route Army, headed by Generals Tsai Ting Kai and Chiang Kwang Nai, sent a telegram to General Chen Gai Tong, Commander-in-Chief of the First Group Army, yesterday assuring him of their attitude towards Kwangtung by stating that the Nineteenth Route Army has no military design or intention to attack Kwangtung and at the same time requesting the Canton military leaders not to be involved in hostility with Fukien through the rumours of misunderstanding.

They declared in the telegram that the 19th Route Army will always uphold the same principle in resistance against Japanese invasion and the suppression of Communists just as when they fought the Japanese at Shanghai two years ago. They added that their duty is for the good of the people and the country, but on account of their present environment they had to alter their cause in order to find a way out for the salvation of the country.

It is learned that this telegram gave a great relief to the local populace as current rumours of an immediate war between the two provinces have been fabricated through the city since the establishment of the People's Revolutionary Government at Foochow.

EUGENE CHEN SPEAKS OUT

The following was handed to a Daily Press representative from a reliable source. It sets out the objects of the People's Revolutionary Government in Foochow:—

Foochow, November 29. Mr. Eugene Chen, who has been appointed Minister for Foreign Affairs of the People's Revolutionary Government, has telegraphed the following statement to a leading New York daily. It has been released for publication locally, because it defines succinctly the dominant aims of the revolutionary movement which has been launched by the entire Nineteenth Route Army in alliance with the broad masses of the Chinese People:—

"In reply to your telegraphic request for a statement on the Nanking Government's decision to 'take drastic measures to suppress the Fukien separatist movement,' I have categorically to state that there is no separatist movement in Fukien. The movement with which the Nineteenth Route Army is identified envisages the entire territory of the Republic of China as one and indivisible and its fundamental purpose is to save China, not to break her up. The movement aims at the ending of the power of Chiang Kai-shek and his ruling clique in Nanking in order to dedicate the entire Nation to the task of saving China with her vast material resources and man-power from the alien domination and control inherent in Nanking's pro-Japanese policy.

The movement also aims at the liquidation of a political system which, based in reality on the Asiatic conception and practice of the state, has been a ruthless exploitation of China and the Chinese People in the interests of the Kuomintang despotism in Nanking; the peasantry starved, taxed and bled as it is under a fiscal system which 'scrapes the skin of the earth' so that Nanking may be able to 'take drastic measures to suppress' the men of the Nineteenth Route Army and those of their countrymen who are not willing to see China conquered.

The movement further aims at the transformation of the medieval economy of our village-life and, on this new foundation, to set up an order of society in which not only political liberty but economic security shall be assured to the individual.

These are aims that must appeal to the politically civilized mind; and the Nineteenth Route Army enters the struggle for their realization with the same spirit that inspired its men when they struggled with the beast of Japanese Imperialism in Shanghai."

(Sgd.) EUGENE CHEN.

MASS MEETING AT NANKING

Operations Against Rebels Urged

Nanking, Nov. 29. One hundred thousand people attended a mass meeting here this morning at which four resolutions were passed.

Firstly, that a telegraph message be sent to Marshal Chiang Kai-shek urging an immediate order for a punitive expedition against the Fukien rebels.

Secondly, that a telegraph message be sent to the Canton, Kwangsi, Chekiang and Hunan commanders urging joint military operations against the rebels.

Thirdly, that a telegraph message be sent to the Nineteenth Route Army officers and men, urging loyalty to the Kuomintang.

Fourthly, that a telegraph message be sent to the Central Executive Council members urging them to hurry to Nanking to discuss the country's pressing problems.—Reuter.

MARSHAL CHANG HSEUH LIANG

Will Return To China Shortly

London, Nov. 29. Marshal Chang Hseuh-liang is leaving here for France, and will later visit Italy, within the next few days. After a short stay on the Continent he is returning to China.

In an interview with Reuter, he said that he was abandoning his intention of visiting Russia. He would go first to Shanghai and then to Nanking.

He was returning primarily to attend to private affairs, but at the same time, he desired to ascertain the Chinese Government's viewpoint in the present difficulties.

If he was able to help to smooth out the situation he would do so. He stressed the fact, however, that he was not attached to any party or faction.—Reuter.

ENGINEER ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Mr. C. G. Haddon Detained in London

London, Nov. 29. Mr. Clarence Guy Gordon Haddon, a consulting engineer who was recently in China, was arrested yesterday in London on a charge of demanding money by menaces from the Crown.

He will appear at Bow Street Police Court to-day.—Reuter.

HADDON FORMALLY REMANDED

Haddon was formally remanded in custody till December 4, bail being refused.

Chief Inspector Foster stated that when he told the charge to Haddon he replied, "this is the only thing I wanted, I do not see why I should be hounded about for being the illegitimate son of the Duke of Clarence."

Later Haddon denied the charge, but admitted he made a petition to H. M. the King.

Prosecuting counsel intimated it might be desirable to have a medical report.—Reuter.

NEGRO YOUTH LYNCHED

For Maltreating White Girl

St. Joseph, Missouri,

November 29.

When a mob of 7,000 battered in the door of the gaol with the object of lynching a negro youth accused of maltreating a white girl, the Sheriff called out the National Guard with tanks. Meanwhile, the crowd rushed to the rear entrance of the prison and dragged out the negro who was beaten and clubbed before he was lynched in the prison court-yard.—Reuter.

HOME BY ELECTION

Conservatives Retain Seat

London, Nov. 29.

The Harborough By-election, caused by the resignation of the Conservative, Lord Castle Stewart, resulted as follows:—

Mr. Ronald Tree, Conservative, 19,320.

Bennett, Labour, 12,450.

Carey Wilson, Liberal, 6,144.—Reuter.

U.S. AVIATOR SENT TO PRISON

Money Received But Goods Not Delivered

Seattle, Nov. 29.

Mr. Bert Hall, the American aviator, was today sentenced at the U.S. Court, at Shanghai, to two and a half years imprisonment for converting to his own use money received from an obscure Chinese general for arms that did not arrive. He was moved to McNeil Island Penitentiary to serve his sentence.—Reuter.

Both Houses of Parliament will debate to-day on Britain's air weakness.

There will be an urgent demand that Great Britain no longer remains a fifth rank air power and there is a serious suggestion that 10,000 machines could and should be provided at the cost of six battleships.

It is practically certain that immediate measures will be taken to form 10 new squadrons so as to raise the strength to the 52 squadrons which was laid down as the minimum 10 years ago, but were never ordered.

Since Germany withdrew from the Disarmament Conference and the League of Nations with the consequent spread of war nerves, a campaign is being conducted in the Press and on the platform emphasizing the vulnerability of practically all the large towns to long-range bombers, and the fact that London could be bombed by machines from every European country and which could return to their bases without re-fuelling.

CONVENTION FOR LIMITATION OF ARMS

IMPORTANT SPEECHES IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

Whole County Endorses Government's Outlook

London, Nov. 29.

In the House of Commons the debate on the Address in Reply to the Speech from the Throne terminated last night with a vote in approval of 427 to 54. The debate has occupied a week and practically every phase of Government policy has been discussed. An exceptionally large share of the debate was devoted to foreign affairs, and particularly to disarmament, on which the Prime Minister, Sir John Simon and Mr. Stanley Baldwin all spoke at length and the devotion of so much time, as well as substance of the speeches delivered, provided fresh proof of the extreme importance which the Government and House attach to the agreed convention for the limitation of arms.

THE POWER OF SCIENCE

The background caused by this anxiety is indicated in the Times to-day which says, "as inventions of science grow in ingenuity and power, so much more formidable would become the danger of unrestricted rearmament." The absence of control would inevitably be followed by competition, and competition is likely to be keenest precisely when international relations are most strained. The construction of ever larger monsters of destruction in times of peace must always be an element of unsettlement. Every crisis will be aggravated by the acceleration of building. British opinion without any distinction of party endorses the Government's emphatic determination that in no circumstances must that disastrous state of affairs be allowed to come about.—British Wireless.

SIR E. DRUMMOND CONFERS WITH SIG. MUSSOLINI

London, Nov. 29. The Italian Premier Signor Mussolini, and Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador to Rome after a conversation on Disarmament, lasting for one hour, agreed upon the advisability of Great Britain and Italy maintaining close contact.

French and German representatives also held discussions with the Italians, and all agreed that little progress was possible until proposals had been received from Germany.—Reuter.

FRANCO-GERMAN RELATIONS

London, Nov. 29. Following his significant statement before the House of Commons, the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Sir John Simon, delivered an equally notable speech on Friday night before the Chamber of Commerce at Cleckheaton. He stressed the disarmament question which he declared to be linked with the question of Franco-German relations, and said that one must come to understand the respective positions of those two countries. The recollection of repeated wars caused France to create enormous armaments while on the other side of the border one sees a nation unable to forget the humiliation of the Versailles Treaty and the shame of enforced disarmament.

"There is not doubt, Sir John continued, that Germany has completely disarmed and has done so on the presumption that other nations would disarm as well. The new generation in Germany has a leader who embodies its claim for honour and liberty. Only by penetrating to the depths of

LITVINOFF'S VISIT

It is understood the primary purpose of M. Litvinoff's visit to Rome is for the formal ratification of the Italo-Russian Pact of friendship and non-aggression, which was initiated earlier in the year.

Questions likely to be discussed are: first disarmament, as a general appeasement on the Russian frontiers would be a powerful stimulus to general disarmament; Second, an Eastern Mediterranean bloc consisting of Italy, Russia and Turkey with a benevolent Greece, which idea has recently considerably progressed.

Thirdly, Italy is anxious to increase her imports of Russian raw material in exchange for machinery, textiles and other manufactures. Sig. Mussolini is anxious to draw Russia from isolation. Reuter.

FOUR GANGSTERS ACQUITTED

Charge of Kidnapping Fails

New York, Nov. 29.

Armed guards surrounded the packed courthouse at St. Paul's Minnesota, to-day, when the jury acquitted four gangsters led by Roger Tuohy, accused of kidnapping William Hamm, Junior.

Hamm is a young and wealthy brewer of the district. He was kidnapped in June last and released a few days later, after ransom of an unstated amount, had been paid.

The same gang was indicted recently at Chicago for the alleged kidnapping of the financier, Jacob Factor, in July.—Reuter.

THE JOYOUS VALLEY

Charlton Athletic laid the foundation of their success by scoring three goals in the first half, when facing a strong wind. Charlton scored twice quite early in the game young Frevi Smith being the scorer on each occasion, the fruits being "on the spot" at the right time. Wilkinson obtained the third goal after Maggs, the Torquay goalkeeper, had saved, but not retained possession, following a fine cross-shot by Pearce.

Wilkinson got a fourth with a great shot, and Fowler headed in to his own goal a centre by Smith, to make a "nap" hand for the home side.

Then Pearce—Charlton's leading scorer—managed to get his usual goal just before the end. Pearce had no luck in this game. He made a number of good attempts, but nothing seemed to go right for him near goal. Charlton relied a lot on their right wing—Wilkinson and Smith—and not only were these players responsible for five of the goals, but their play was greatly in advance of that shown by Boulter and Hobbs on the other wing. Charlton were well served in defence, although it was only the brilliant goalkeeping of Wright that prevented the visitors from scoring a goal or two.

Torquay's best forward was Bird, while Stubbs showed the resolve and not a little skill at centre-forward. Against a less skilful centre-half than Jabling the Torquay leader might have caused a lot of trouble. Pickersgill was the best Torquay half-back, although directly opposed to the soundest wing in the full centre-half than Jobling the Tapp stood up to the Charlton attacks well.

THREE FOR WATSON

A bad mistake by Reddish, the visitors' left back, in the first three minutes of the game gave West Ham the necessary condensation to win on a tight vein. Reddish, in attempting to clear a Morton centre, smashed the ball past his own goalkeeper. McPhail looked bewildered as he seemed to have the ball covered. But the Lincoln men pulled themselves together after the first shock, and they deserved tribute for making such a plucky stand-up fight. Their defence, to a man never finished, and in that quarter-even allowing for the goals against them—they were as good as the winners.

There this favourable comparison stopped. The visitors had the masterly hard-working forward in Iverson, and four moderate men—a long way out of his class.

West Ham had a line in which all five could pull their weight, with Watson a positive inspiration. The home leader has never shown better ball control or greater driving power. From first to last he was West Ham's big man.

It was a rattling fine game for 20 minutes, with Lincoln showing any amount of confidence, even after they had lost the first goal, but later on it broke up into spasmodic phases, in which the greater cohesive strength of the West Ham forwards was a definite feature.

Watson added No. 2 from a Morton centre in the twenty-seventh minutes. From that point until the interval it was mostly a battle between the visitors' defence and the strong-going home forwards.

West Ham went further ahead after the interval, Watson scoring with a terrific drive. The visitors got their one grain of comfort shortly afterwards when Barrett deflected the ball into his own net during a goalmouth scramble.

Ten minutes from the end Watson added home another Morton pass, where McPhail was not. Watson made wholesale changes in a daring experiment to break their bad run—and it came off. By bringing in Davies and Searle they completed the promotion of the whole of the reserve half-back line. Armstrong having preceded this pair two weeks ago. This move was successful, for the halves contributed a good deal to the success.

Woodward, usually a left-half, was transferred to centre-forward and played very well, scoring both goals with his head, the first after four minutes and then again 15 minutes after the interval, following Chapman's corner. Devan was reintroduced at outside-left and was in great form. The changes generally brought fresh lift into the attack, which was continually dangerous. Cave saving often from Barnett, Irvine and Woodward.

Another interesting feature of the game was the inclusion of McLaren, signed on during the week from Leicester. He was a very resourceful goalkeeper, and never appeared to be in any trouble.

Watford should have been two goals up at half-time, but Irvine shot straight at Cave from the penalty spot. Hal Boyle's dim been better he would have scored for Northampton immediately before half-time, but with McLaren out of goal he was just wide.

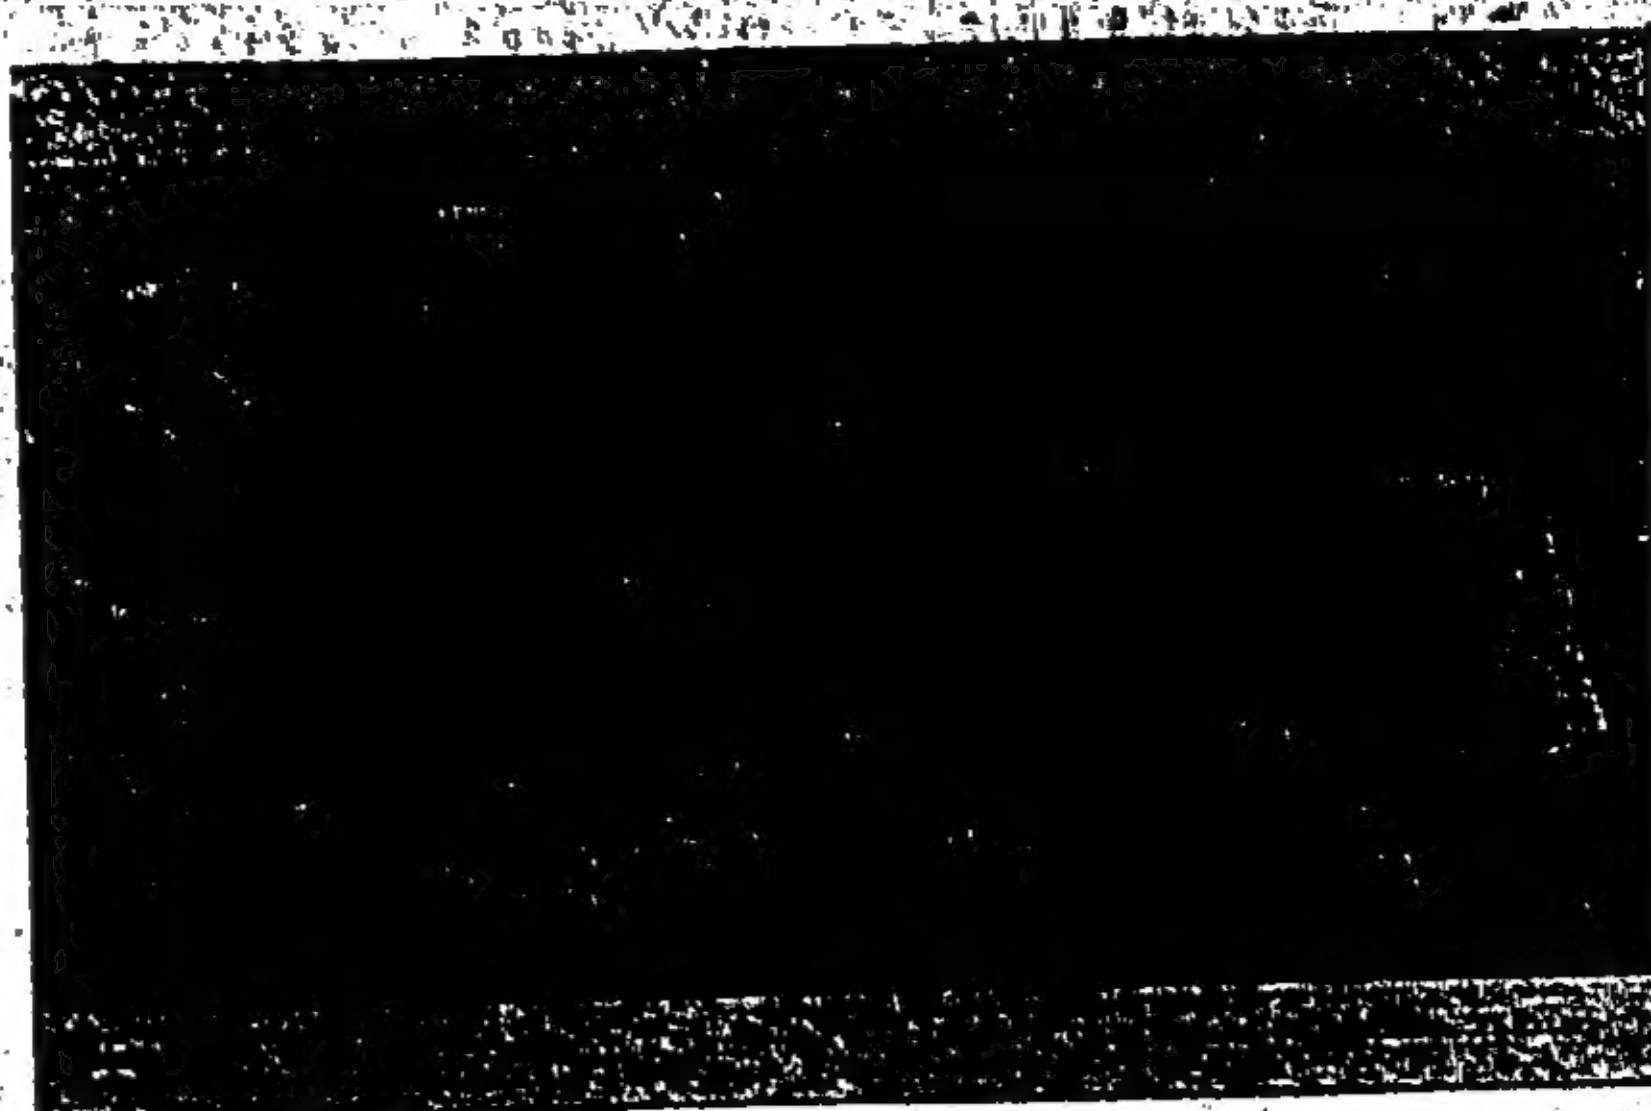

GRAHAM INJURED

Considering the sudden nature of the ground, Notts Forest and Millwall played attractive football, especially in the first half when the Forest forwards were in sparkling form.

The Millwall defence had a gruelling experience, and it was much to their credit that so few goals were scored. Forest commenced in stylish fashion, Dickinson being disposed of only six yards from goal following a beautiful movement in which the whole of the front line participated.

The Forest continued the more threatening, and West Graham put Barry clean through, the left-winger failed to make ground, but from his backward pass Dickinson judiciously lifted the ball into the goalmouth where Dent adroitly directed it from the goalie's head.

Sydney HOWARD
NIGHT of the GARTER
WINIFRED SHOTTER
ELSIE RANDOLPH
COMING TO THE CENTRAL

Walsh, who had fallen back into goal, retrieved what appeared to a hopeless situation.

"Little was seen of the Millwall front line during the first half although Bond individually was occasionally dangerous but generally speaking he received little support.

The home side monopolised play, only Wilson's brilliance the goal preventing the lead being taken earlier, for two fierce drives from Race and Dent duly extended him.

The Forest attack ably supported by Pugh, Graham, and McKelvey who formed an excellent trio of halves, was very direct in its approach to goal and exerted almost persistent pressure throughout the first half.

It was, therefore, fully expected when Race, side-stepping Hancock, drove accurately into the net from 18 yards to take the lead.

Millwall were severely handicapped when their left-half, Graham, pulled a muscle and was off the field for fully 70 minutes.

Considering the Forest pressed almost continuously, it speaks volumes for the sturdy defence of the Londoners, Walsh and Sweetman covering Wilson very effectively.

Play in the second half became somewhat scrappy, and the finishing of both sides was uncertain. Fishlock for Millwall and Masters of the Forest allowing easy openings to escape.

Dickinson headed Forest's second goal after Dent had hit an upright with a great drive.

HECTIC TEN MINUTES

Aldershot's defence spoiled its stone-wall reputation at Coventry, where the home team did most of the attacking during the first half. Although not so effective in combination the Aldershot forwards were fast and dangerous raiders. It was following one of these raids that White scored the only goal of the first half from a corner kick.

Robb was outstanding in the Aldershot goal and was well supported by his backs. Wade and McDougall. The trio worked on a sound understanding with each other, and Middleton played a fine centre-half game.

Early in the second half Coventry's persistence was rewarded, and in a sensational 10 minutes, the City, playing with irresistible dash, piled on three goals. Lake was the first to break down the visitors' defence. White Coventry's outside-right, quickly gave his side the lead, right quickly gave his side the lead, right quickly gave his side the lead.

Up to the interval it appeared as though the visiting defence would maintain its good record; but when the Coventry attack increased its lead without further sacrifice they proved irresistible and were full value for their win.

POMPEY GET THERE

A high wind played tricks with the ball at Fratton Park, where the feature was the fine marking of the halves.

Nicol, Allen and Thackeray were scoring immediately afterwards. Bolton's ten then played gallantly.

Their first two goals were of the snap variety following advances by Mackay, who had gone to outside-right and in each case Tootill was beaten in coming out to intercept.

Fulham were perhaps unlucky not to have drawn, for Rounsee hit a post and Finney saved right on the line from Finch, but generally the Bolton defence covered their goal well.

Seven minutes from the end Westwood got Bolton's third goal, and the Wanderers fully deserved their clean-out victory. They worked better together with ten men than with eleven. Atkinson, Finney, Mackay and Milson being most conspicuous in the second half.

On their display Fulham are not promotion candidates. Their inside forwards showed no shooting power, and their downings on the ball cost them dearly. Arnold and Finch on the wings were their best forwards, and though the defence was solid enough, it never quite recovered from the shock of Bolton's quick scoring.

TRAINING GALLOPS

Fast Work At Happy Valley By Australian Ponies

(BY "MORNING-DEW")

There were several very fast gallops at Happy Valley yesterday, particularly by Australian ponies.
Lucy Glitters covered a fast mile, doing the distance in 2.03.1 and finishing the last quarter in 29 seconds.

Another fast—and impressive—gallop was that of Rosy Morn, who taken over a mile in 2.04, finishing the last quarter comfortably in 29 seconds.

Tecumseh was sent over a fast three quarters of a mile which he covered in 1.34.4, finishing strongly.

Portia was taken over three quarters of a mile, but he was only sped in the last quarter which he took 27.1 second to cover.

If there is any doubt as to Liberty Bay's condition (there was some rumour floating around last week) it has now been definitely dispelled by his splendid gallop at the course yesterday.

The Goat covered a fast three quarters but his finish was not too impressive.

King Salmon was sent over a mile, and he did his work as though he liked it.

Other ponies which impressed were Friar Tuck, Don, King's Bounty and Iron Gray.

The times taken yesterday were as follows:—

LOCAL CRICKET

I.R.C. Tournament To Start Soon

The annual cricket tournament, run by the Indian Recreation Club for its members, opens on December 10, when the Bhoras meet the Stoics.

A notable absentee in this year's competition are last year's champions—"Incogs"—but in their place a new team—"Brigades"—have entered.

These matches are played on Sunday mornings and are always characterised by some good-natured "barracking". The fixtures for the season are:—

1933.

THE REVOLT OF THE ROVERS

The Bee In The Scottish Bonnets

(Special Air-Mail Service)

Edinburgh, Nov. 8.
Scout hats—or the Balmoral Bonnet? This is the issue that led yesterday to the revolt of the Scouts of Scotland.

Mass resignations are now expected to follow the insistence of Lord Baden Powell and the Imperial Scout Headquarters in the wearing of the official uniform, and the badge, it is feared, may wreck the senior movement.

The crisis is a sequel to what was originally merely a request by Lord Baden Powell, which the majority of Scottish Rovers were content simply to ignore.

Now that the request has become an order, however, a feeling of revolt has spread throughout Scotland, and resignations on a wholesale scale are regarded as inevitable.

"ENGLAND—JEALOUS"

The first step in this direction has been taken by the 2nd Highland Rovers, who have their headquarters at Elgin.

Following a decision to disband, they have resigned in a body, and are arranging to launch a new movement with similar aims, in which it is expected that they will be joined by the greater number of the 9,000 Rover Scouts in Scotland.

In Glasgow, in particular, opinion is strongly in favour of similar action.

The Scottish Rovers attribute the official veto to the jealousy which the English rank and file have revealed at Jamborees to the picturesque appearance of the Scots in their kilts.

Scotland justifies its revolt by pointing out that it is a common practice to allow the Scouts of other nations to adopt their own traditional dress.

"We feel strongly," said a Moray leader to-day, "that it is unfair to Scotland that we should be ordered to bow the knee to an order of this kind issued by a council of Englishmen."

H.A.L. LINERS TO BE REBUILT

The Hamburg-American Line has withdrawn the liner Hamburg from the transatlantic service to be rebuilt at the Blohm & Voigt yard at Hamburg, and will withdraw the Deutschland, Albert Ballin and New York in turn. The similar work each ship will be fitted out with a new bow, thus increasing its length by 30 feet 4 inches. This change is expected to bring about fuel economy and provide additional passenger and cargo carrying capacity. The passenger accommodations in all three classes will be modernised and a covered deck provided for third class passengers. The work will test the most modern facilities of ship construction. As each ship enters dry dock it will be moved close to its new bow, which will be practically finished.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

A Scheme That Would Be A Boon

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Fire has often been termed man's greatest friend, and while this is true in the main, it is also his fiercest enemy. Every year, in Kowloon alone, many lives are lost and much property damaged and if the record is decreasing it is a high compliment to the members of the fire brigade. The majority of fires are caused through ignorance and carelessness and the only remedy for this is the instruction of the young and old in fire prevention. It might not be out of the way were the authorities to promote an annual "Fire Prevention Week," based upon a similar plan to that used in other countries.

To begin with, the majority of fires in the Colony occurred in houses, tenements and apartments occupied chiefly by Chinese and nine out of every ten are caused by having some inflammable substance too near an exposed flame. If an annual fire prevention week were held this danger could to a great extent be eliminated. A fire fighting campaign could be held in the following manner. One week every year could be set aside, during which time inspectors and firemen could visit the various schools, both Chinese and English, and explain to the children the dangers lurking in such things as a simple little box of matches, a kerosene lamp, and only rags. He could make the story interesting in the extreme by opening his talk with a tale of bravery based upon the life of some great fire-fighter. The children could be instructed in the rendering of first aid to those who have been burned, and as a lesson in competition they could be set the task of writing an essay on fire prevention, the best one of each grade being sent either to the fire department or a selected board of judges and a winner picked out and presented with a prize as a sign of interest taken in his work.

Junior fire wardens could also be enlisted among the children, and their duties would be to report any violations of the fire act which they saw. For the edification of the poorer classes that attend no schools signs could be pasted about the streets, bearing Chinese characters and outlining the dangers of carelessness in the handling of flames. A few Oriental orators of which the colony seems to have in abundance could, might for a small monetary consideration be prevailed upon to preach this gospel of self preservation to the ignorant and could give instructions on how to send in an alarm, a subject which, though it may seem trivial is most important as the saving of a minute with fire fighting apparatus often means the saving of a life.

These ideas would not cost much to be put into operation, though they would entail a lot of work.
However, the question evolves itself into this: is it better to put in the time guarding against the menace or spend time and money overcoming it once it has a hold?
The question answers itself, and though the results of an annual fire prevention week would be almost negligible the first year, in four or five not only would thousands of dollars be saved, but, what is far more important, many horrible deaths would be prevented.

CHINA AND DEMOCRACY

Speech by Quo Tai Chi at Liverpool

London, Nov. 29.
"Although Democracy is getting less popular, responsible leaders in China have planned their faith to democracy as practised in Great Britain and the United States," stated the Chinese Minister to London Mr. Quo Tai-chi, speaking at Liverpool, last night.

China was working towards that form of Government, he said, and he asked other nations to be patient with them.
Nowadays, no country compared with China as a clearly indicated channel in which the circulation of the world's commerce could be re-started, as China was compact and was the best immediate purchasing proposition in the undeveloped markets of the world.
China could also use the world's glut of idle capital.—Reuter.

ALL-IRELAND PARLIAMENT

Impossible Says Lord
Craigavon

London, Nov. 29.
"There can be no question of an all-Ireland Parliament," declared Lord Craigavon, the Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, whom his doctor has forbidden actively to participate in the general election.
—Reuter.

WHEAT ADVISORY COMMITTEE

More Discussions
in London

London, Nov. 29.
The Wheat Advisory Committee met in London to-day under the Presidency of the American Ambassador.

The world wheat situation was reviewed, after which two special sub-committees were appointed to consider the proposals of the importing and exporting countries and to report upon them at the next meeting of the main committee which was fixed for January 22.

The main committee will then report to the governments concerned.
The sub-committee on market conditions, with the American representative presiding and comprising representatives of Britain, France, Germany, Canada, Australia and Hungary, was instructed to report before Christmas.

The sub-committee on measures for securing an increase in the consumption of wheat will meet in Paris early in January, under the chairmanship of the French representative, the other members including the representatives of Britain, Italy, Germany, Argentina, Australia, Rumania and Yugo-Slavia.—Reuter.

SETTLEMENT FOR ASSYRIANS

Discussion in House of Lords

London, Nov. 28.
In the House of Lords to-night,
the Archbishop of Canterbury called attention to the plight of the Assyrians and said he shared the hope expressed by Sir John Simon that the Council of the League of Nations would be able to make a satisfactory and enduring solution of the most perplexing and difficult problem of finding a place of settlement for the Assyrian people.

Replying for the Government, Lord Hailsham recalled that after the war, which the Assyrians had entered at the instance of Russia, Great Britain had saved them from annihilation by keeping many thousands of them in refugee camps at considerable expense.

Since that time Britain had assisted them to settle on the lands which they occupied before the war and in other suitable places.
It was not possible to settle them in one homogeneous community in Europe.

RESPONSIBILITY DENIED
Lord Hailsham denied that Sir Francis Humphrys had assured the Mandates Commission at Geneva that Britain would accept the responsibility for the future safety and welfare of the Assyrians after the cessation of the mandate and the entrance of Iraq into the League.

To a question by the Mandates Commission on whether Iraq had reached such a state of development that they could be relied upon to exercise religious toleration, Sir Francis Humphrys replied that he was satisfied Iraq could be so relied upon, and the responsibility for that view rested upon the British Government and not upon the Mandates Commission.

NO ASSURANCE
Sir Francis Humphrys never gave any assurance that, after Britain gave up the mandate she would guarantee the protection of the minorities in Iraq.
Lord Hailsham pointed out that,
in the recent disturbances, the Assyrians attacked first and had they succeeded a first-class war would have broken out with a certainty of very serious repercussions.

On the other hand, the excesses of the Iraqis after subduing the Assyrians were quite unjustifiable and had merited and received the severest condemnation.

With regard to the efforts of the committee of the Council of the League to find a place for the resettlement of Assyrians in a foreign country, the problem presented a very great difficulty and it seemed that up to the present no suitable place was available.

The Iraq Government had undertaken to make a substantial contribution towards whatever cost might be incurred in resettling the Assyrians.

The view of the Government was that, apart from the special responsibility of the Iraq Government, there rested also a very great responsibility upon the League of Nations as a whole. He did not think Britain would be backward in sharing any financial responsibility with the other members of the League but she would give no assurance that she would individually, or apart from the League, accept any separate and independent liability.—British Wireless.

GAUMONT PREFERENCE SHARES

London, Nov. 8.
There will be on offer in the market to-day a line of 21 Five-and-a-Half per Cent. Cumulative First Preference shares of the Gaumont British Picture Corporation at 20s. each, free of stamp. This line represents the hitherto unissued balance ($264,456) of the authorized total of $3,250,000 of the company's Preference capital. It may be recalled that in the early part of the year the Gaumont British company went a long way towards the simplification and consolidation of the financial structure of the group by a replacement issue of $2,000,000 Four-and-a-Half per Cent. First Debenture stock, and by the sale of $1,000,000 of Five-and-a-Half First Preference shares. The placing of the balance of the authorized amount of Preference shares represents a further step towards the same object, being required to discharge bank loans.

GESTETNER CAPITAL SCHEME

London, Nov. 8.
A plan involving a partial return of capital is submitted to shareholders of D. Gestetner, Limited. In 1919 this company, which manufactures duplicating and office printing machines, increased its capital by an issue of £250,000 of Preference shares in order to provide for the finance of the American business. This business, however, proving unprofitable, was disposed of for cash, as a result of which the company is the possessor of a surplus of cash assets over liabilities exceeding £200,000. The issued capital consists of 360,000 Seven per Cent. Cumulative Preference shares of £1 each and 600,000 Ordinary shares of 10s. each, and it is proposed to return 5s. a share in respect of each Preference and Ordinary share. At the same time the option will be given to shareholders to subscribe for new Ordinary shares at the rate of one for every five Preference or every five Ordinary shares held. Thus, while the company is returning capital to the extent of £250,000, the net payment it will make and the net reduction made in the capital—assuming that the options are fully exercised—will be £200,000. On the assumption mentioned the company's issued capital will be £275,000, divided into 360,000 Seven per Cent. Cumulative Preference shares of 15s. each and 850,000 Ordinary shares of 5s. each. The board are authorized by the Industrial Finance and Investment Corporation—the financial house, responsible for the placing of this Preference capital in 1920—to state that that company will be prepared to purchase the shares to be allotted to shareholders in respect of their option at a price of £1 a share. The scheme seems one that shareholders are likely to welcome.

GOOD REVENUE FIGURES

Deficit Largely Reduced
London, Nov. 8.
The Exchequer returns issued last night again make a favourable showing. Up to October 23 ordinary revenue amounted to £256,754, 923 and ordinary expenditure to £277,984,392, leaving a deficit of £20,230,639. It is of course usual for the revenue of this period of the financial year to show a fairly heavy deficit, but it is materially smaller this year than at the corresponding date in 1932, when the deficit amounted to £26,519,378. Individual items of the revenue

P. & O. CHAIRMAN ON SHIPPING

Must Not Allow Great Industry To Die

London, Nov. 8.
The Hon. Alexander Shaw is chairman of the P. and O. Company and a director of the Bank of England. When he speaks, as he did last night in Scotland, on the two subjects of banking and shipping, his remarks are read with close attention in the City.
On the banking side, Mr. Shaw confined himself to proposals made from Socialist quarters for the nationalization of banking. He claimed fairly that Britain, with her present system, was the only leading country which had not been seriously affected by banking failures, while to the world he pointed out the danger of nationalization. He put the new and pertinent question, whether or not they would advocate that the State should guarantee all bank deposits. It is a vital question, since the present trust of the depositors would, presumably, be shaken unless there was some assurance that funds would not be jeopardized by a dangerous admixture of politics with banking, whatever government was in power.
Turning to the plight in British shipping, Mr. Shaw strongly urged that the country cannot afford to see the great shipping industry being slowly killed by the unfair competition of other countries, which is provided by foreign governments' subsidies for building and operating, and flag discrimination in their ports. He pleaded for an agreement within the Empire which should reserve for British shipping a proper proportion of British cargoes.

are coming in well. Increases over the figures for the corresponding period of last year are shown of £5,400,000 in estate duties, £22,000,000 in stamps, £7,034,000 in Customs, and £1,400,000 in the net receipt from the Post Office. Income tax so far this year has yielded £22,550,000 less than in 1932 in £20,800,000, but last week it produced £21,076,000, or £225,000 more than in the corresponding period of last year.
The floating debt has now been reduced below £1,000,000,000 for the first time since May 27 last. Comment upon the returns is made in our City columns.
